Capitalise banks to ensure easier financing: RBI

Key challenge is to revive domestic demand, stresses central bank governor

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@New Delhi

ADMITTING that the economy took a much bigger hit than anticipated, the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) of the Reserve Bank of India harped on the need to ensure easier financing to revive it after the lockdown is lifted by capitalising banks, the minutes of its meeting released on Friday revealed.

"Given the enormity of a collapse in demand, the need is to move ahead full-throttle to ease financing conditions further, so as to revive consumption and revitalise investment. Since banks are the key players in financing consumption and investment, it is also imperative that they remain adequately capitalised," RBI Governor Shaktikanta Das said.

Das added that the key challenge for monetary policy at this stage is to revive domestic demand to avoid any harmful effect on income and employment in the short run and potential growth over the medium term. Other members felt that to be able to do so, banks must remain adequately capitalised.

"For monetary policy actions to transmit fully to the credit market, it is important that banks remain well-capitalised," RBI's Executive Director and new MPC member Janak Raj said.

All MPC members felt that the impact of Covid-19 on the economy was far more severe than anticipated. One of them, RBI Deputy Governor Michael Debabrata Patra, felt that it will take years for the damage to be fixed. "In fact, my view is that the damage is so deep and extensive that India's potential output has been pushed down, and it will take years to repair," Patra emphasised.

The MPC meeting, scheduled from June 3 to 5, was advanced to May 20-22 in view of the deteriorating economic condition due to the lockdown to contain the coronavirus.

₹20-lakh crore Aatmanirbhar Bharat package won't be affected

MOST SCHEMES PUT ON ICE THIS FISCAL TO CUT COSTS

ANURADHA SHUKLA @New Delhi

WITH the economy staring at recession, the Centre has sought to squeeze its expenditure by directing ministries not to initiate any new scheme for a year and put on ice various schemes already announced in the general budget. However, the ₹20-lakh crore Aatmnirbhar Bharat package will continue unimpeded.

While schemes announced in the budget and cleared by the Department of Expenditure will not be suspended, those at the stage of in-principle approval without fund release have been shelved.

"No new proposal for a scheme/sub-scheme, whether under delegated powers to the administrative ministry including SFC (Standing Finance Committee) proposal, or through EFC (Expenditure Finance Committee), should be initiated this year except the proposals announced under the Pradhan Mantri Garib Kalyan Yojana or the Aatma Nirbhar Bharat Abhiyan package and any other special package/announcement," said the Department of Expenditure (DoE) in an office memorandum dated June 4.

ON THE HIT LIST

- Redevelopment of four stations and operation of 150 passenger trains through PPP mode
- Introduction of more Tejas type trains to connect iconic tourist destinations
- ₹18,600 crore Bengaluru Suburban Transportation project
- ₹20,000 crore outlay for renewable energy sector
- ₹99,300 crore outlay for educational sector in FY21
- Krishi Udaan scheme by Civil Aviation Ministry to transport agri-products to national and international destinations
- Kisan Rail PPP project for cold supply chain to transport perishable goods
- Developing 100 more airports by 2024 to support Udaan scheme
- ₹8,000 crore allocation over 5 years for National Mission on Quantum Technology
- Additional ₹69,000 crore funding in Union budget for the health sector
- Proposed expansion of PM Kusum Scheme to help 20 lakh farmers set up solar pumps
- Allocation to states for clean air projects
- ₹6,000 crore outlay for BharatNet programme to connect 1 lakh gram panchayat
- ₹9,000 crore for welfare of senior citizens

Any exception would require approval of the expenditure department. According to sources in the Ministry of Finance, the directive was issued after it was flooded with requests for approval for funds.

"This does not mean all projects announced in the budget will be postponed. If the Department of Expenditure reviews it and clears it, it can still go. The purpose is to take up only that expenditure which is essential and of urgent nature," a senior official in the Finance Ministry explained.

Regarding ongoing projects where funds have been released, their continuation "would be based on an outcome review based on evaluation", the memo said.

The belt-tightening was expected as the government is sensing a steep fall in revenue. It has already decided to raise an additional ₹4.2 lakh crore to take its borrowings to ₹12 lakh crore in the current fiscal.

Day's national Covid-19 count tad short of 10K

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@New Delhi

INDIA appears to be within kissing distance of the daily Covid-19 cases reaching five figures, as fresh infections spiked in the past 24 hours to 9,851 on Friday.

The country also saw 273 new infection-related fatalities since Thursday morning, taking the toll to 6,348.

While India now has 1.10 lakh active cases of infection, 1.09 lakh patients have been cured. The number of overall confirmed cases is 2,26,770.

The country is, worryingly, registering a gradual growth in disease incidence per million, which stands at over 157. Just a few days ago, this figure was around 110.

A large chunk of India's coronavirus cases—1,48,637—is in Maharashtra, Tamil Nadu, Delhi and Gujarat.

In Maharashtra, the situation is particularly concerning as the state has over 41,000 cases. Also, 2,170 patients have already died. The state recorded 123 deaths in the last 24 hours.

In Delhi, where the handling of the Covid-19 situation has drawn national attention, first due to misleading reporting of deaths, and now due to the controversial decision to not test asymptomatic people, 44 new infection related deaths were recorded in a day.

No salary or staff cuts for now, says BCCI

Chennai: Unlike its peers around the world, who have fallen to economic pressures and announced pay and staff cuts, the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) is neither thinking of any pay cuts yet, nor is it looking at laying off employees. HOUSE PICK

Kharge set for maiden term in Rajya Sabha

ANUSHA RAVI @Bengaluru

CONGRESS heavyweight Mallikarjun Kharge is all set to return to Parliament, but this time as a member of the Upper House. After much delay, AICC president Sonia Gandhi on Friday announced Kharge's candidature for the biennial Rajya Sabha elections from Karnataka, scheduled to be held on June 19.

In 2019, the former Leader of the Opposition in the Lok Sabha had faced his first-ever electoral defeat in his decades-long political career by a margin of 95,452 votes from Gulbarga Lok Sabha constituency. More than a year later, Kharge is all set to comfortably sail through to the Rajya Sabha.

The announcement of Kharge's candidature comes as a reward for engineering a near-impossible coalition in Maharashtra between the Congress, Nationalist Congress Party and the Shiv Sena, along with independent MLAs. Kharge is credited with laying the foundation for the Maha Vikas Aghadi, along with Sharad Pawar and Uddhav Thackeray, despite the ideological differences.

Although the decision came directly from the party's central leadership, KPCC president-designate D K Shivakumar too is said to have endorsed Kharge's name, despite other veteran leaders like M Veerappa Moily and K H Muniyappa lobbying for it. "My best wishes to dedicated Congressman, a senior leader with immense experience in the field of politics and administration Mallikarjun Kharge for being chosen as Congress Rajya Sabha candidate from Karnataka," Shivakumar tweeted on Friday. HOMES FOR POOR

14 yrs on, crushed dreams, cracked houses

ASHWINI M SRIPAD
@Doddamannina Gudde (Ramanagara)

FOR 14 long years, over 1,400 applicants under an affordable housing scheme, have hung on to hope that one day, a house will finally be theirs. But just like their dreams, the houses too now seem to be crumbling.

In 2006, the then Chief Minister H D Kumaraswamy had launched a project to construct affordable houses for the poor in his Assembly constituency Ramanagara. As many as 240 flats were constructed and 1,430 people, who were identified as beneficiaries, even paid up the initial amount of Rs 5,100. The cost of each unit was fixed at Rs 1.35 lakh. While SC and ST beneficiaries were required to pay Rs 13,500, the General category allottees had to pay Rs 15,000.

A watchman sits outside a vacant flat at Doddamannina Gudde in Ramanagara district on Friday | MEGHANA SASTRY

The eight-acre project site at Doddamannina Gudde in Ramanagara, is about 1 km from the Bengaluru-Mysuru highway, close to Janapada Loka, where 240 one-BHK flats have been constructed. There are 30 blocks with each having eight houses (ground plus two floors). The 20x20 sq ft flats/houses have a living room, bedroom, kitchen and toilet-cum-bathroom. The connecting road too is well-asphalted and has streetlights.

The vacant houses now have broken windows, doors and commodes, with cracks in the walls, peeling roofs, electric wires cut and are filled with dust. The sumps for storing water do not have lids as they were stolen by miscreants. Locals also say that the project site has become a den for anti-social activities. P5

BBMP adopts 'Koti Vruksha' project to make city greener

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

CONGRESS MLA Dinesh Gundu Rao took a dig at the state government on Friday, saying it does not have an account of where it planted trees and how many of them survived.

"While planting of trees is a good effort, there should also be a record on how many of them have survived and what is their status now. The government claimed to have planted 20 crore saplings, but where are they?" he said.

He was speaking to media on the sidelines of the Koti Vruksha Sainya programme organised by the BBMP as part of the World Environment Day.

The BBMP has now taken over the programme which envisages to plant 1 crore saplings in the city in three years and ensure all of them survive.

The programme was started by a team of volunteers last year and 8,000 saplings were planted from January to April.

The civic body plans to plant 12 lakh saplings in the city during June-July.

BBMP Commissioner B H Anil Kumar said, "we should work to reverse the climate change... It is the responsibility of every individual and official to work towards it."

T V Surabhi of the Sainya said the BBMP has given 20 acres of land for plantations.

Mercy Mission wages war against hunger

Over one crore meals distributed during lockdown, 50,000 rotis a day for migrants

S LALITHA @Bengaluru

THESE are mindboggling statistics: Over 1 crore meals given during the lockdown period for anyone going hungry in Bengaluru. An average of 50,000 rotis packed every day along with other eatables, for thousands of passengers leaving by Shramik Special trains from the city.

Over 20 NGOs in the city came together under the banner 'Mercy Mission' to make this massive project possible. Unstinted financial support from the Azim Premji Foundation and generous contributions from numerous donors, which shot up during the month of Ramadan, ensured its continuity right from March 24, when it began in a small way.

An emotional Sohana Das, seated inside a Shramik train departing to Balasore in Odisha, said, "I have no words to express my gratitude. It is something I will never forget in my lifetime." Many migrants, about to embark on their journey penniless, expressed similar sentiments.

Mohammed Ismail of Mercy Mission, who insists on being called "only a volunteer", said, "There are 48 kitchens across the city which prepare the meals every day. In addition, three vendors at Koramangala, Padmanabha Nagar and Electronics City make rotis for us daily. The one in Padmanabha Nagar is the largest, and supplies 30,000 to 40,000 rotis a day. The food is transported to a vast space available at Crescent School in Basavanagudi, where nearly 60 volunteers pack the food throughout the night."

Tanveer Ahmed, also from the Mission, said, "It is not just Mercy Mission but many others who have chipped in to eradicate hunger. There would have been more deaths due to hunger than corona, but for this collective effort."

Divisional Railway Manager, Bengaluru, A K Verma said, "The NGOs have supplied so many things. Their spirit of serving humanity with dedication and sincerity is absolutely wonderful, and a big learning experience for all of us. "

Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

06th June : Libra is my sign of the day. This section of the sky is especially strong at the moment and it has one very strong message: it is time to cultivate the arts of diplomacy and pursue peace. Libra is all about conversation rather than confrontation, and the advice for everyone right now is this: spread a little love!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
You may be extremely glad to see other people, but don't hang on too tight. It's so easy for you take charge that you sometimes forget that they have their own lives to lead, and that they'll appreciate you much more if you give them all the support and encouragement they want.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
Your stars are perfect for a spot of pleasure. It really doesn't matter whether your interests are high-brow or low, whether it's the disco that beckons or the opera. Just allow yourself to unwind, pursue new interests and explore the world around you.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
Don't take too much for granted and do try to see people and situations as they really are. Remember that old saying: the good general never fights a battle she, or he, is not going to win. That way you'll avoid blundering into problems which are actually easily avoided.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
You should get out and about today, satisfying your natural curiosity. Don't take your preconceptions with you, but understand that everyone has a story to tell. Also, seek out the people who can give you the expert advice and practical help you need.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
Jupiter enables you to take the initiative. The question, though, is what is sues to deal with now? I'd say that shopping, spending and savings have a fair claim on your time, if not the best. But then, there's also the emotional cost of a relationship to consider.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
Career or personal problems have to be faced, but you can allow yourself some time off. Given that a number of long-term questions can now be deferred, today looks like a good time to potter around, busying yourself with chores and home improvements.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
The only things that will stop you are your own doubts. You would be well advised to wait until this evening, tomorrow or even next month if you are initiating a new project. If you push ahead too early, then you might forget some very essential preparations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
You may decide to throw in your lot with a person, or persons, who operate in a different circle. You might do best to start by making your needs quite clear, and leaving nobody in any doubt that you mean business. But they probably already know that, anyway!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
The Moon's tricky relationship with your sign may set you on edge but, if you give in to your emotions, you may feel a whole lot better. You should already have a date in your mind for your next major engagement, so get on and make the necessary arrangements.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
This is very much a time to capitalise on your unique potential, not to mention your under-used artistic talents. Please try and find whatever romantic avenue is going to suit you best. The point is that if you're happy, people close to you will feel better.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
You've been through the mill, but difficulties over intensely personal matrimonial or partnership matters should now be in the past. You're now in a healing phase, during which all rifts must be mended. If you allow difficult emotions to linger then they might get worse again next month, or the month after that.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
The overall planetary picture is decidedly more encouraging than it has been of late, partly because the Sun and Mercury are adjusting their positions. It almost looks as if you may rely on other people, and depend on partners to come up with the goods. Unpunctuality, though, will not go unpunished!

CONG TO SUPPORT GOWDA FOR RS, BUT EX-PM STILL CAUTIOUS

While JDS patriarch enjoys good rapport with BJP, he is aware Big 2 target his MLAs

BANSY KALAPPA @ Bengaluru

GETTING a former Prime Minister re-elected is now an edge-of-seat thriller. Although JDS leader HD Deve Gowda received rousing support for his Rajya Sabha candidature from his 34 MLAs at the JDLP meeting on Friday, and the party was expected to announce Gowda as nominee, things did not go according to script. Surprisingly, Deve Gowda refrained from saying the final 'I do'.

The 87-year-old veteran of many elections knows full well that with 34 MLAs, he does not have the numbers to ensure he wins, and will be dependent on the Congress and BJP. Gowda, who was seen in a video conference with former UPA Chairperson Sonia Gandhi, shares a good equation with the BJP too. Gowda's predicament ensues from the fact that apart from shortage of numbers, his party is, by past precedent, good hunting ground for the larger parties. In the last RS polls, Siddaramaiah's Congress managed to get a third candidate, K C Ramamurthy, elected by getting JDS MLAs to cross-vote for him.

The JDS was constrained to take disciplinary action against the MLAs — N Cheluvarayaswamy, Zameer Ahmed, HC Balakrishna and others — who finally defected to the Congress. Rumours of other considerations abounded for this switch, but nothing was proved. Sources say that a similar mood exists, with the JDS apprehensive about the loyalty of a group of MLAs from within its ranks. That is the reason for Gowda to toe the line of caution.

Some sources explained that the BJP, which is hard-pressed for numbers, has still not announced its candidates and should it name a third candidate, the party can easily slice through the JDS and take away numbers. The Congress has ensured support for his candidature with its extra numbers, but a cautious Gowda is keeping all options open, with the shock defeat in the Tumkur LS polls still on his mind.

Interestingly, the RS official retiree from JDS, Kupendra Reddy, is not being considered.

SIDDU BATS FOR KHARGE, NO DECISION YET ON SURPLUS VOTES

Mysuru: Opposition leader Siddaramaiah has supported the Congress' decision to field veteran leader Mallikarjun Kharge as the party's candidate for the upcoming Rajya Sabha elections. AICC president Sonia Gandhi on Friday approved Kharge's candidature. "Kharge is the senior-most leader in the Congress and has served as the Congress floor leader in Parliament. I conveyed my support for Kharge in front of AICC general secretary K C Venugopal," Siddaramaiah said. Asked about whether the Congress would field the second candidate or support the JDS as they have enough surplus votes, Siddaramaiah only said that the KPCC would abide by the party high command's decision.

BJP MLAs divided over support for Katti, Kore

NAUSHAD BIJAPUR @ Belagavi

WITH political developments ahead of the Rajya Sabha elections picking up pace, Water Resources Minister Ramesh Jarkiholi said that the BJP MLAs in the state had conveyed their choice of candidate to the party top brass.

Playing down the ongoing tussle between former MP Ramesh Katti and sitting member Prabhakar Kore, Jarkiholi said the party leaders are not divided on the candidature and no one lobbied for the ticket either.

On the recent meeting held by Ramesh Katti and his brother Umesh in Bengaluru, which was attended by several party MLAs, Jarkiholi said they had only invited the lawmakers for dinner and there was nothing political about it.

According to sources, Jarkiholi has strongly backed Ramesh Katti while a group of legislators, led by Deputy Chief Minister Laxman Savadi, is in support of Kore.

The large number of Lingayat BJP MLAs in Mumbai-Karnataka are divided between Kore and Katti's groups even as the party leadership is trying to get them together to pick a consensus candidate.

The Katti brothers, who feel they could suffer further political setback if they are continued to be ignored, are said to be exerting pressure on the party to get either a berth in the cabinet for Umesh or an RS ticket for Ramesh.

Cong-JDS talks not over yet

WITH 68 MLAs in the Legislative Assembly, the Congress can elect its candidate without trouble. For Kharge, a nine-time MLA and two-term Lok Sabha member, this will be his first stint as a Rajya Sabha member. A candidate will require a minimum of 45 votes to be elected to the Rajya Sabha from Karnataka.

"Kharge is a vocal leader who has been in responsible positions like the Leader of Opposition earlier. His representation of his community, command over language and articulation, or mere presence, makes him a better candidate than other party colleagues," said political analyst Prof Harish Ramaswamy.

Talks between the Congress and the JDS are yet to conclude over the transfer of additional votes to enable JDS patriarch H D Devegowda's election to the Upper House.

Aakar Patel booked for 'provocative' post

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE JC Nagar police booked Aakar Patel, former executive director of Amnesty International India, for allegedly making a "provocative" statement on social media "with intent to cause riot".

Referring to protests in the United States following the death of African-American George Floyd, Patel had tweeted last Sunday, "We need protests like these. From Dalits and Muslims and Adivasis. And the poor. And women. World will notice. Protest is a craft."

The police registered a suo motu case against Patel, a resident of Benson Town. JC Nagar police inspector Nagaraj D R stated in his complaint that Patel's post is "provocative in nature" and "instigates the public to go on protests".

Following the complaint, Patel was booked for making statements "conducing to public mischief", provocation "with intent to cause riots and abetting commission of offence by public". The FIR was registered on Tuesday. However, police refused to divulge information on further course of action against the human rights activist.

Amnesty International India executive director Avinash Kumar condemned the police action, saying it is another example of how the right to dissent "is being increasingly criminalised in the country."

"The Bengaluru police must stop abusing its authority and put an end to intimidation and harassment of Aakar Patel for exercising his constitutionally guaranteed right to freedom of expression. Peaceful protests against the government are not a crime. Not agreeing with the policies of those in power does not make you a traitor either," he said.

Avoid coming to Udupi from Mumbai: Shobha

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Udupi

JUST about a month after urging Karnataka Chief Secretary T M Vijay Bhaskar to allow people to travel from Mumbai to Udupi during the pandemic lockdown, Lok Sabha member Shobha Karandlaje appealed to Udupi-origin people staying in the country's financial capital to "avoid visiting the district in large numbers".

With the number of Covid-19 cases going up rapidly in the district, most of them being Mumbai returnees, she said on Friday, "There are sufficient beds to tackle Covid-19 now. But if more people decide to travel to Udupi from Mumbai, arrangements for quarantine would be a challenge."

Don't open schools till October: Siddu

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Mysuru

AS the debate over reopening of schools rages, the State government is coming under political pressure, apart from parents and school managements. Opposition leader Siddaramaiah on Friday said that the government should not reopen schools until October, as Covid-19 cases are on the rise. "The government should not act in haste as it will put both parents and children in trouble," he said, adding that it must shelve the plan for the next three months and conduct special classes to cover the syllabus, if required.

Siddaramaiah also opposed the Centre's move to amend the Electricity Act, when states already have regulatory commissions. Calling the stimulus package for the economy "bogus", Siddaramaiah said the Central and State governments had failed to handle the pandemic effectively.

'PARENTS' VIEWS WILL BE TAKEN'

Mysuru: A decision on reopening schools will based on the opinion of parents, Education Minister Suresh Kumar has said. Meetings with parents will be held on June 10, 11 and 12, in over one lakh government, aided, and unaided schools, and the report will be sent to the Centre, he said.

DKS-Siddhartha family alliance has Vinay Guruji's blessings

B THIPPERUDRAPPA @ Chikkamagaluru

MARRIAGES may be made in heaven, but are not solemnised until the family guruji seals the alliance. It is said that Gowrigadde Avadhoot Vinay Guruji has, indeed, given his blessings for the betrothal of Aishwarya, daughter of KPCC president DK Shivakumar, and Amartya Hegde, son of Cafe Coffee Day founder late VG Siddhartha Hegde, and grandson of former Chief Minister SM Krishna.

The political grapevine has been abuzz with news of the alliance, and this was confirmed by a confidant of the guruji. He told TNIE that a fortnight ago, Vasanthi Gangaiah Hegde, grandmother of Amartya, had been to the ashram of Vinay Guruji in Koppa taluk of Chikkamagaluru, to seek his opinion.

Vasanthi Hegde is known to be a devout follower of Vinay Guruji. He reportedly blessed her and told her it would be an auspicious alliance. Around the same time, talks were on between the two families at Shivakumar's house, the source said.

While it is almost certain that the betrothal will be held soon, the wedding will serve to strengthen the alliance between the two families. Shivakumar and Siddhartha had been business partners, and the KPCC president looks upon SM Krishna as his political mentor. The elders of the two families are said to have held talks on the proposed marriage.

Siddhartha, who ended his life in Mangaluru last July, has his roots in Chikkamagaluru. His close associate and Sringeri MLA TD Raje Gowda told TNIE that the alliance has not come as a surprise as the families are very close. He also placed faith in Amartya, saying that he is far-sighted and could revive his father's sinking business.

Gowrigadde Ashram, near Hariharapura in Koppa taluk, is favoured by politicians who take part in yagnas and homas, and seek information about their future prospects from the Guruji. It is said that Vinay Guruji's predictions about former PM HD Deve Gowda and Prime Minister Narendra Modi have come true. Former CM HD Kumaraswamy, KPCC president DK Shivakumar and Chief Minister BS Yediyurappa are known to be frequent visitors, with Yediyurappa having taken part in a homa here recently.

SURGE IN NUMBERS, BUT SITUATION NOT OUT OF CONTROL: OFFICIALS

'Most patients young, asymptomatic, can be treated at basic government facilities'

RAMU PATIL @Bengaluru

ON the face of it, the sudden surge in positive cases in Karnataka gives an impression that the state, which initially managed the situation well, is slowly losing the plot in its fight against Covid-19.

While the apprehension is based on the sharp increase in Covid cases — 2,653 new ones in just 10 days, the government and experts said that the situation is neither worrisome nor has it gone out of hand and that the administration can handle it.

At 1.17 per cent, the Covid mortality rate in Karnataka continues to be much lesser than the national average of 2.79 per cent and Maharashtra's 3.48 per cent. Tamil Nadu, which has registered 27,256 cases (as on June 5), too, has managed to keep its mortality rate at just 0.80 per cent.

Nearly 90 per cent of those tested in the last few days are migrant workers and their family members returning mostly from Maharashtra and other high-prevalence states.

A health worker conducts a check of staffers at the Police Commissioner's Office in Bengaluru on Friday | PANDARINATH B

"We have made necessary arrangements. Asymptomatic cases are very high and they can be treated at basic government hospitals that are classified as Covid Care Centres (CCCs). Severe cases that require oxygen or ventilator support are very few," Additional Chief Secretary, Health and Family Welfare, Jawaid Akhtar, told TNIE on Friday.

Based on the Central government's advice, in Mumbai, Delhi and other places, asymptomatic patients are isolated at home. "That is an option, but the situation has not reached such a stage in Karnataka," he said.

On Friday, the state reported a record 515 new cases, taking the total to 4,835. Of them, 3,088 are active cases treated at designated hospitals and CCCs. As on Friday, 13 were in ICUs.

"Increase in cases is all due to migrants coming from other states and there is no local spread. Even if numbers are increasing, there is no reason to worry as 80-85 per cent of the cases are mild or asymptomatic. Also, most of them are young and will recover fast," said Dr S Sachidanand, Vice-Chancellor, Rajiv Gandhi University of Health Sciences, and head of a committee that audited Covid deaths in the state. "Identification of Influenza-Like Illness and Severe Acute Respiratory Infection cases helped us keep the mortality rate low. Late reporting is one of the reasons for deaths in the state," he said.

However, management of quarantine centres is a concern. After some people contracted the virus at these centres and came in contact with Maharashtra returnees, the administration is taking measures to improve the system. Akhtar said they have now taken appropriate steps. Dr Sachidanand too said there is a need to ensure proper quarantining to avoid local transmission.

In a new spike, state reports 515 cases, 'hotspot' adds 204

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

KARNATAKA set a new, single-day record of Covid-19 cases with 515 positives on Friday, and in a continuing trend, 482 of them have come from other states. The total now stands at 4,835, with 1,688 discharges and 3,088 active cases, while the total number of patients travelling from other states is 3,398.

The state's average daily growth rate over the last five days is 8.5%, but Udupi's is nearly four times that at 32.6%, followed by Ramanagara at 32%, Bengaluru Rural at 15.6%, and Kalaburagi at 14.5%.

Among the 515 patients, 471 are returnees from Maharashtra, 18 are being investigated, 12 are contacts, three have a travel history from Delhi, while two each from Haryana, Tamil Nadu, Dharwad, Telangana and Andhra Pradesh have come into the state and some have international travel history.

Udupi district topped the chart with 204 patients, all of whom have returned from Maharashtra. Yadgir came next with 74 cases, of which 73 are Maharashtra returnees. Vijaypura had 53 cases, of which 39 are Maharashtra returnees, while the other 14 were contacts of containment zones. Of 42 positive cases from Kalaburagi, 41 have returned from Maharashtra.

Bidar had 39 cases, of which 37 are Maharashtra returnees. In Belagavi, of the 36 cases, 34 are returnees from Maharastra and two from Haryana.

Mandya reported 13 cases, of whom, 12 have returned from Maharastra. Bengaluru Rural had 12 cases, of which 11 are Maharashtra returnees and one from Andhra Pradesh. Bengaluru Urban had 10 cases, and of them, three have returned from Delhi, one from Tamil Nadu, one from Indonesia and three are contacts of Patients 2834 and 2894.

Of the eight cases in Dakshina Kannada, seven are Maharashtra returnees. In Uttara Kannada, all the seven are Maharashtra returnees. In Hassan and Chikkaballapura, which had three cases each, all are from Maharastra. Dharwad had three cases of contacts with previous patients. Haveri had two cases, and of them, one is a Maharashtra returnee. Ramanagara reported two cases. Kolar, Bagalkot, Davanagere and Ballari had one case each.

Udupi may see reduced numbers from June 7

PRAKASH SAMAGA @Udupi

IN the highest single-day spike, Udupi district recorded 204 positive cases on Friday. However, the average daily growth of Covid-19 cases in the district is expected to come down from June 7.

Officials heading the district's response to the pandemic said that the Covid curve will flatten as results of 7,500 samples out of the 8,500 people who returned from outside the state (91 per cent from Maharashtra) arrived as on Friday.

People in Udupi were worried after the district recorded the highest number of cases in the state on June 3. Initially, the district was in the green zone with three positive cases. But with the arrival of people from Mumbai, the number began to escalate. As on Friday, the total number of cases in the district was 768. With 82 of them discharged, and one death reported on May 14, there are 685 active cases, the highest in the state.

The latest spike is attributed to test results of 2,000 samples arriving on Friday. Udupi DC G Jagadish told The New Indian Express that the positivity rate is at 10 per cent tested. The results of the final batch of around 1,000 samples are likely to arrive on Saturday. From Sunday, such a high number of samples will not be sent for testing, he added.

"We will ramp up surveillance for Severe Acute Respiratory Infections or Influenza-like illnesses to detect hidden infections," he said. Of the total 768 tested positive on Friday, 733 had a travel history to Mumbai. 17 who tested positive returned from the UAE, five from Telangana, three from Kerala and 10 local cases.

Pvt hospitals fail to alert officials in time, death graph heads north

RANJANI MADHAVAN @Bengaluru

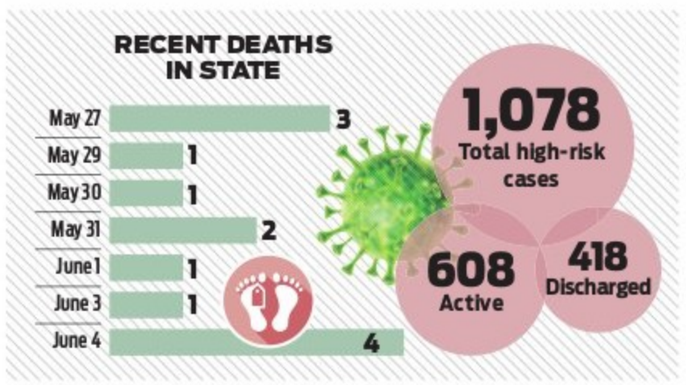
IN the last 10 days, 13 patients from eight districts have lost their lives to Covid in Karnataka. Their ages ranged from 47 to 90, and included both men and women. What is common among all these cases, as per the Critical Care Support Team (CCST) looking into high-risk cases, was that private hospitals did not notify district health authorities in time about symptomatic patients coming into their facilities.

Dr Thrilok Chandra, Special Officer, CCST, said, "In the case of a 44-year-old man's death in Gadag, he went to two private hospitals, but both did not inform the government that he had Covid symptoms. It was only after his condition deteriorated that he was shifted to a government hospital in Hubballi-Dharwad."

He was diagnosed with ILI, fever, cough, diabetes and urinary tract infection. He died on June 4, the same day he was shifted to the government hospital, due to bronchopneumonia and sepsis. Private hospitals not notifying district health offices early on is leading to patients' condition deteriorating to a point of no return. The government has instructed private medical establishments and pharmacies to take down details of patients with SARI and ILI symptoms, to intervene proactively.

"In a recent death in Vijayapura, the person kept relying on over-the-counter drugs and reported late to the hospital. In some cases, people have been brought dead," Dr. Chandra said. "In several cases, patients suffer from sepsis, which is a large -scale infection of multiple organs. It happens when a person's condition has deteriorated and is not treated on time."

The state has decided to cancel their licences, under the Karnataka Private Medical Establishments Act, of private establishments if they do not report such patients. Dr. Anoop Amarnath, Chief, Clinical Services, Manipal Hospitals, who is part of CCST and does e-rounds of patients, said, "A majority of recent deaths have comorbidity and advanced age as factors."



Pharmacies roped in to track SARI, ILI cases

IFFATH FATHIMA @Bengaluru

A 70-YEAR-old man Ramesh (name changed) visited a pharmacy and asked for paracetamol for cough and cold. His contact, name and address were taken by the pharmacist, and a week later, he got a call from the health department asking about his condition.

This is the procedure being followed by CCST to ensure that pharmacies are keeping tabs on people coming with symptoms and asking for over-the-counter drugs. It has been made even more stringent after a number of deaths were reported with the majority in the 60-plus age category.

Dr Chandra said, "We have told pharmacies across the state to keep tabs on such people and have given them a web application to store the data of patients. We have seen many patients self-medicating for a long time and later coming to us when the condition deteriorates, by which time no hospital can save them."

Once the pharmacies upload the data, the district surveillance officer (DSO) goes door-to-door, screens these patients and asks about their health. "The DSO will immediately take them to a hospital if needed," he said. Dr. Amarnath said, "We have studied more than 1,500 cases and among them, 30% needed critical care, while others were SARI and ILI cases."

New SOP for Maha returnees: 21-day home quarantine with -ve report

CHETANA BELAGERE @Bengaluru

THE state government, which is seeing record highs in Covid-19 cases almost every day, has apparently decided to tweak the testing and quarantine strategies.

A health department source confirmed that an expert committee met Chief Minister BS Yediyurappa on Thursday and a new testing strategy has been decided.

"There will be some tweaking in the testing strategy and also the standard operating procedure (SOP) for quarantining those returning from high-prevalence states. The details will be divulged by the CM soon," a senior officer said.

Meanwhile, the State Health Department on Friday came up with a new SOPO for those returning from Maharashtra. "Any person from Maharashtra, if he/she carries Covid-19 'negative' certificate from the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR)-approved lab which is latest by two days, will be exempted from IQ (institutional quarantine) of seven days and sent for 21 days home quarantine directly," it stated.

Pankaj Kumar Pandey, Commissioner, Health and Family Welfare Department, said, "Some SOPs may change, and we will announce them soon."

With a worryingly high number of cases, Maharashtra, which has become the epicentre of coronavirus, has been accused of not conducting enough tests. "People coming from Maharashtra have been contributing to a large number of positive cases in Karnataka. It is unfortunate that Maharashtra is not screening or testing well," a public health activist said.

COVID COUP

In a first, critically-ill Covid patient recovers after plasma therapy

CHETANA BELAGERE @Bengaluru

THE second patient to receive plasma therapy has recovered and shifted out of ICU, while the first-ever patient to be the recipient of plasma died at Victoria Hospital a few weeks ago.

Medical Education Minister Dr Sudhakar K tweeted, "Karnataka achieves yet another significant landmark in the fight against Covid. After KIMS Hubbali, BMCRI becomes the second hospital to successfully treat corona patients with plasma therapy. Congrats to all doctors & staff of BMC for this success."

Dr Vishal Rao, Head and Neck Oncologist, HCG Cancer Centre, whose team has been certified by the ICMR to conduct plasma therapy on critically-ill patients, said this was the second case from their clinical study. "The KIMS patient was part of the ICMR study on moderately ill patients. Our study is about plasma on critically ill patients," he said.

Doctors say the patient received convalescent plasma on May 27

The study involves two groups of patients — severe cases suffering from breathlessness but not on ventilator, and critical patients on ventilator, he said. The trial is on with 24 patients. So far, they have found six patients, of which two have been administered plasma.

Dr Vishal said that the two plasma therapy cases have taught them how comorbidities are crucial in patients with Covid. "It is not the virus that killed the first patient, but the lack of maintenance of his diabetes and other comorbidities," he said.

The recovered patient, who is middle-aged, was admitted to Victoria Hospital's ICU with severe Covid conditions and was also diabetic with poor sugar control. "We knew that it was important to intervene early and we are happy with the results. People with comorbidities should keep their diabetes and hypertension under control and take medications regularly," he said.

Dr Jayanthi C R, Director, BMCRI, said, "The patient received convalescent plasma on May 27. He was taken off high-flow nasal oxygen on June 2, and is now on minimal oxygen."

Allottees to be picked through lottery

"MANY anti-social activities take place here now. It's scary to come here, specially during night. Many people come here to drink and heaps of bottles can be seen inside the rooms," Manjunath, who hails from a nearby village, told TNIE.

"When Kumaraswamy was CM, the then government directed the Revenue Department to construct the houses, which, in turn, entrusted the work to the Karnataka Slum Development Board. The Board constructed the houses and that's when the Forest Department came up and said the land belongs to them. Since then, any further construction has been halted. Only a few months ago, the Revenue Department decided to provide alternate land nearby to the Forest Department", said a official source.

Slum Development Board officials said that since there are more than 1,400 applicants and only 240 houses, the final allottees will be picked through lottery. This has to be done under the chairmanship of local MLA Anitha Kumaraswamy.

When asked if the initial deposit will be returned to those who are not picked in the lottery, official sources said that houses are being constructed under other schemes and those left out will be allotted houses elsewhere.

Tirumala to open doors on June 11

Trial run for three days from June 8; devotees can enter temple from 6.30 am to 7.30 pm

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Tirumala

DARSHAN of Lord Venkateswara at the Tirumala temple will resume from June 11. Only a limited number of devotees will be allowed, and all safety protocols, as per the state and Central governments' instructions, will be in place. However, there won't be any arjita sevas or 'utsavams' with pilgrims.

Srivari darshan will only be allowed from 6.30 am to 7.30 pm, and the first hour, from 6.30 am to 7.30 am, will be for VIPs. Those walking to Tirumala will only be allowed from the Alipiri footpath, which will be open from 6 am to 4 pm, and only those who have tickets will be allowed. Ghat roads will be open from 5 am to 8 pm, and VIP darshan will be only for oneself as no recommendation letters will be honoured.

Before Sarva darshan (regular darshan) is resumed on June 11, a trial run will be held for three days from June 8, TTD chairman YV Subba Reddy said in Tirumala on Friday.

"On a trial basis, some TTD employees will be allowed for darshan on June 8 and 9 to assess how many people we can provide darshan to while following the safety protocol, which includes physical distancing. On June 10, some local devotees will be allowed for darshan," he explained.

As per the Centre's instructions, devotees above the age of 65 years of age and below 10 will not be allowed for darshan. People from containment zones too won't be allowed. In all 3,000 darshan tickets will be issued online every day, and an equal number of tickets will be issued offline in Tirupati and Alipiri. "Darshan tickets do not serve as permission to enter the state. People from other states have to make their own arrangements to enter Andhra Pradesh," TTD executive officer Anil Kumar Singhal said.

One arrested in Kerala elephant death

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Palakkad

THE first and second accused, Abdul Kareem and his son Riyazudheen, of Ambalapara, who were charged by the police for killing a wild female elephant by laying a snare with a coconut filled with firecrackers, are absconding. However, the third accused, Wilson of Areekode, a worker in the rubber estate owned by the duo, has been arrested.

Wilson has reportedly been living with an Adivasi girl in the area for the past four years, said Shoranur DySP Muralidharan who is heading the investigation.

A joint probe by the police and forest personnel found that it was the first two accused who kept the coconut stuffed in the forest near their farm. It was Wilson who made the firecrackers before hiding it inside the coconut. Wilson was taken to the place where the coconut was placed, as part of evidence collection on Friday.

Wilson also showed the police and forest personnel the thatched shed where the firecrackers were made. The police seized the remnants of the firecrackers.

It has now come to light that the elephant was injured on May 12 after biting the coconut. The three accused were aware that the elephant was injured on that day itself. The accused then used empty tins and sticks to scare it away. The forest personnel are said to have seen the elephant in the Karuvarakundu area on May 17.

DySP Muralidharan said that Wilson will be produced in the Mannarkad Judicial First Class Magistrate Court on Saturday. The Forest officials have found out that the first two accused used to snare wild boars and other wildlife before selling them to locals.

EXTORTION

Ravi Pujari chargesheeted in two cases

ENS @Bengaluru

THE police have submitted chargesheet against gangster Ravi Pujari in two cases -- the Shabnam Developers shootout and double-murder case and an extortion case in Whitefield. Joint Commissioner of Police (Crime) Sandeep Patil said that chargesheets will be filed in other cases in which Pujari was involved after investigation.

Pujari, who was extradited from Senegal in February, is now cooling his heels at the Parappana Agrahara Central Prison. The police are investigating nearly 100 cases registered against him across the state. In the shootout case in Tilak Nagar police station limits, Pujari's henchmen had stormed into the office of Shabnam Developers and shot dead two staffers. The investigation had revealed that Samiulla, proprietor of Shabnam Developers, had not paid heed to extortion and threat calls by Pujari. The Whitefield case is related to a builder, who was threatened by Pujari and was made to pay hafta (extortion money).

Not necessary for parties to appear personally: HC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

FAMILY courts cannot insist on parties appearing personally when they have authorised legal representatives, the Karnataka High Court said on Friday.

A division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice S Vishwajith Shetty passed the order on a PIL registered suo motu to address technical issues arising from video conference hearings.

The court said that there was no legal basis for family courts in the state to insist that a petitioner appears before court personally while filing a petition, or that a respondent appears in person when a notice is served, when they have legal representatives.

In case of transactions under the Negotiable Instruments Act too, the personal appearance of the complainant before the magistrate for examination is not required in all cases if the complainant has filed submitted an affidavit, or has an authorised advocate.

The bench said that if required, the magistrate can issue summons after perusing the affidavit.

Referring to the payment of maintenance in matrimonial cases, the bench said it would be appropriate if the courts' monetary transactions are not manually done, and directed the Registrar (Computers) to prepare a note dealing with legal and technical issues concerning Treasury Rules.

Elderly won't be prosecuted for going out: Centre

ENS @Bengaluru

THE Union government on Friday informed the Karnataka High Court that people above 65 years of age will not be prosecuted under the Disaster Management Act (DMA) if they come out of their homes for important work or duty.

They have been only "advised" to stay home as they are vulnerable to Covid-19, it said.

Recording the submission of the government, a division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice S Vishwajith Shetty disposed of a PIL filed by B N Jayadeva (68) of Sadashivanagar in the city, questioning the restrictions on the movement of the elderly.

GROWTH, FISCAL DEFICIT AND THE GRIM REALITY

With India's GDP data for FY20 out last week, it's time to talk turkey. As against terrifying predictions of growth crashing to 1% in Q4, official data printed at 3.1%. For the full fiscal, it stood at 4.2%, notches below the government's estimate of 5%. Recovery should have been underway but for Covid-19, because of which nations are discovering how the economy and human lives could be lost to an unconquerable pathogen. They are also being taught an expensive lesson on the perils of globalisation and over-connectedness to trade.

Several countries including India could choke for breath and analysts have sketched the nightmare for us. First up is a witches' brew of rising poverty and unemployment. As per the International Labour Organization, nearly 1.6 billion informal workers worldwide are tipped for the chop. Consequently, about 420 million will likely slip into poverty—a first in decades—outrunning various government interventions that helped narrow the inequality divide.

As for India, critics believe the ₹21-lakh crore economic package is for the birds as the fiscal stimulus comprised just 1% of the GDP. Optimists reason that the government was holding its fiscal ammunition in reserve, allowing itself flexibility to bring the big guns later when the need deepens. But granular data on tax revenue and fiscal deficit released last week introduced us to the grim reality. Net tax collections fell to a decade-low leaving little headroom for manoeuvre. Fiscal deficit too breached levels last seen during the UPA-era, wiping out Arun Jaitley's strenuous financial plumbing not by the slip of a pen, but by forced spending. The least the government must do is undertake an urgent, one-time exercise of overhauling the FY21 Budget, reallocating additional spends for health, defence and infrastructure. It should also provide fresh revenue collections in light of last year's shortfall, reset fiscal deficit targets by tweaking FRBM guidelines, and importantly, give realistic estimates for growth, which in all likelihood may contract for the first time in 40 years.

T'GANA IT SECTOR BRIGHT SPARK AMID COVID GLOOM

Telangana's IT sector has been on a gravy train for the last two decades. The sector's exports for 2019-20 were ₹1,28,807 crore, which should stir the green-eyed monster to life in its neighbours. The figures meant a whopping 17.93% growth over its performance in 2018-19. The sector provided employment to 5,82,126 IT professionals, which again is 7.2% more than the previous year. And Telangana's IT exports constituted 11.58% of the total exports of the sector from India.

Like Rome, the IT sector in Hyderabad was not built in a day. Once barren, the land in Madhapur on what was once the city's outskirts began humming with activity after the then CM N Chandrababu Naidu built Cyber Towers in 1998. It has now become the second Silicon Valley of India, next only to Bengaluru. It is home to all major IT companies, including Accenture, TCS, Microsoft, Infosys, Amazon and Micron. The sector grew due to its intrinsic strength. After the bifurcation of the state in 2014, Telangana CM K Chandrashekar Rao appointed his son, K T Rama Rao, who worked in a technology concern in the US, as IT minister. The KCR government has decided to spend ₹10,000 crore each year in the next five years to expand infrastructure and turn Hyderabad into a global city.

However, the IT sector in Hyderabad is at present highly service-based. If it becomes product-based, the growth could get further acceleration, provided the sector can come up with products like Facebook or WhatsApp. This would free our reliance on companies based out of the US, besides spurring employment locally. Another area Telangana could make a foray into is digital technology, which holds out a bright future besides providing huge employment. The SME sector could be promoted with subsidies to take part in this revolution. There is also a felt need for building an ecosystem for Global Capability Centres to thrive. Already Telangana is making efforts to draw companies exiting China—after the Covid-19 crisis—interested in Hyderabad. If the wooing works, it would further push the state into a higher growth trajectory.

This single act of mindless cruelty has inflicted a body blow to Kerala's carefully crafted image of a literate, progressive and tolerant state

AN ELEPHANT-SIZED TRAGEDY IN GOD'S OWN COUNTRY

E K BHARAT BHUSHAN

Former Chief Secretary to Government of Kerala

AMIT BANDRE

The horrendous killing of a 15-year-old pregnant elephant in the Mannarkkad forest division of Kerala has attracted the attention of the national and international press. More than anything, it was the brutal manner of the death—the elephant died of wounds it suffered while chewing a pineapple stuffed with explosives—that drew worldwide condemnation. This single act of mindless cruelty has inflicted a body blow to Kerala's carefully crafted image of a literate, progressive and tolerant state. A region that attracted positive reports for its efforts in containing Covid-19 very recently is now being looked on, in many quarters, as the home of boorish vandals. While what happened to the elephant can be cast aside as a single standalone incident, does it also not reveal some deep fault lines in our psyche?

While forest-dwelling animals are mostly invisible to the common man, we are indeed witness to extreme cruelty that we exhibit towards other living beings in our midst. Meat is a predominant item in the daily diet of many people. And being a matter of personal choice, none can quarrel with meat eaters on this score. But the manner in which we transport, maintain and slaughter animals would be revolting to any observer. Every day we see animals, mostly cows and buffaloes, transported in constricted carriers with no food or water. While some local bodies do have abattoirs, most animals are slaughtered in abandoned grounds or sheds. We know that in most civilised societies, animals are killed painlessly and instantly using guns that stun the animal first. But we take recourse to brutal methods. Not infrequently we read reports of panicked animals with their necks partly cut running on public roads until cheering crowds chase them down and bring them back to complete the deed. Carcasses are transferred in three-wheelers spewing gore on the roads and on reaching the shops, they are hung out for display. Anyone who passes by, including little children on their way to school, are witness to this macabre display of flesh and dripping blood.

It is an admitted fact that captive elephants are often victims of extreme cruelty and in the inevitable conflict arising out of this, several elephants, mahouts as well as members of the public have lost their lives. In this context, an effort made by the state government and the unsatisfactory end it met with is relevant. During 2001-03, when this author was working as Secretary of the Forests and Wildlife Department, Kerala, a unique law was framed, aimed at the protection and maintenance of captive elephants. Issued with the assent of the legislature, it spelt out clear and inviolable conditions that every elephant keeper was required by law to follow. Strict penalties, including jail term, were prescribed for violators. It was hailed as a pioneering step nationally. Yet, the implementation suffered due to opposition from various lobbies and finally the government itself chose to bury it in 2012, when the associated penal provisions were withdrawn.

> Over the years, settlers have been claiming lands that had once been thick forests. The Gadgil and the much-watered-down Kasturirangan reports were met with protests and rioting. When the heavens opened up during the monsoon months in 2018 and 2019, there was a brief period of introspection. Then all was business as usual

Getting back to the unfortunate elephant that was tortured to death, we should not lose sight of the circumstances that led her to be administered the spiked pineapple. A former central minister, an avowed animal lover, very nearly diverted the issue by alleging that the dastardly act was done in Malappuram district and not in Palakkad, where the animal met its end. She is a respected animal rights activist but her comments were inappropriate and intemperate. It is not that the Palakkad offender, if guilty, is any less of an offender of the Wildlife Act than his Malappuram cousin! Sadly, the controversy over the minister's remarks did cause the focus to shift, with Kerala-based news channels holding long debates between detractors and defenders of Malappuram. So great is Kerala's obsession with politics over all else.

Like everything else in Kerala, this event has also seen another story emerging. Due to incessant animal attacks on their crops and livelihood, and apathy of the forest department, the farmers in areas abutting the forests are forced to resort to illegal means. This is a tale by itself. Over the years, settlers have been claiming lands that had once been thick forests. Encouraged by their example, more and more encroachment is taking place and the changing governments have been working overtime to regularise these encroachments. The Gadgil and the much-watered-down Kasturirangan reports were met with protests and rioting. Predictably, the first victims of arson are government offices where old documents are kept. When the heavens opened up during the monsoon months in 2018 and 2019, there was a brief period of introspection. Then all was business as usual.

Amidst this pandemonium, where are animals supposed to go and subsist? As for elephants, those who know of their behaviour tell us that they traverse the same path that they have been using for centuries. Any crop that springs up in this 'elephant corridor' is fair game for these beasts. Also included are pineapples with crackers stuck inside. It is up to us to reform and realise that we too are only a link in the chain of nature.

'TIME FOR NATURE': EDUCATION AND THE ENVIRONMENT

RAMESH POKHRIYAL 'NISHANK'

Union Minister for Human Resource Development

The theme for this year's World Environment Day is "Time for nature". This view of the UN shows that we have reached the tipping point regarding the way we view Mother Nature. It is the moment to act! In line with the theme, I am happy to share empirical statistics to showcase the Indian government's work on environment conservation under the dynamic leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi. India has ranked for the first time among the top 10 countries in the Climate Change Performance Index (CCPI). The annual increase in carbon stock is 21.3 million tons, which is equivalent to 78.2 million tons of CO_2. As per the ISFR 2019 report, forest and tree cover have increased by 5,100 sq. km. I also congratulate my colleague Prakash Javadekar for his untiring efforts in achieving the above goals.

Prime Minister Modi, on the occasion of International Mother Earth Day, set the priorities regarding nature. He said, "We all express gratitude to our planet for the abundance of care and compassion. Let us pledge to work towards a cleaner, healthier and more prosperous planet." These words are the guiding spirit as to what values we want to impart to our students and teachers in the Human Resource Development ministry. Education and environment conservation have a symbiotic relationship. The more educated a society is, the more protective towards nature the society becomes. India, with its rich cultural heritage, complemented by education, always had a harmonious relationship with nature.

Environment conservation has always been close to my heart. I come from the land where the famous Chipko movement started. Chandi Prasad Bhatt, Sunderlal Bahuguna and Gaura Devi have been my inspiration. When I was working as chief minister of Uttarakhand, I had the opportunity to launch the "Van Panchayats Scheme", ensuring public participation in conserving forests. I requested the then government to give a "green bonus" to hill states. I launched the Sparsh Ganga campaign to ensure that our national river Ganga stays unpolluted.

After I took on the role of HRD minister, blending the environment with education has been my core agenda. The Draft New Education Policy strongly recommends curricular integration and knowledge systems that will enable students to develop skills and knowledge on environmental awareness and conservation. The flexible and innovative curriculum in higher educational institutions shall emphasise the offering of credit-based courses and projects in the areas of environmental education. The same vision was enunciated by DG UNESCO, Audrey Azoulay, when she visited India. She emphatically articulated that environmental awareness should be a part of the curriculum.

The approach for environmental conservation cannot be straitjacketed but requires continual inquiry and reflection. Thus, multiple strategies have been adopted for integrating the environment with education. The HRD ministry has ensured that the teaching of Environmental Studies as EVS (science) and EVS (social studies) starts as early as the primary stage and is incorporated in classes above and even in higher education. Several initiatives have been launched. I am glad that students are coming out in large numbers to participate. Jal Shakti Abhiyan (Samagra Shiksha-Jal Suraksha) conservation campaign has been launched wherein 10 crore students have collectively saved 3,650 crore litres of water in one year and will save 36,500 crore litres of water in 10 years. More than 35 lakh saplings have been planted by students across schools and higher education institutes under the "one student one tree" campaign. Further, an awareness programme has been initiated on environmental hazards of electronic waste by the UGC. The AICTE has issued guidelines for the ban of plastic use in higher education institutions.

> India has ranked for the first time among the top 10 nations in the Climate Change Performance Index ... It is essential to strengthen education about the environment; this requires multidisciplinary integration in the curriculum. This can only be possible if academicians and students come forth to adopt traditional practices and knowledge systems

I want to laud the remarkable efforts of higher education institutes towards green development and building a more sustainable and environmentally conscious nation. The UGC has developed SATAT—a Framework for Eco-Friendly and Sustainable Campus development, with various courses at the graduate and postgraduate level adhering to environment conservation. A six-month core module syllabus for environmental studies will be implemented at the undergraduate level.

A sustainable environment requires that all the people of India, especially students, are cognisant of their role and responsibility in working towards a sustainable future for the planet. The UN Sustainable Development Goals—Climate action (Goal 13), Life on land (Goal 15), Life below water (Goal 14), and responsible consumption and production (Goal 12)—are all interrelated and interdependent. Due to the onset of the pandemic, the gains in tackling poverty, hunger, health and education may suffer serious setbacks. However, the setbacks may be aggravated if we collectively do not address threats to the environment. It is essential to strengthen education about the environment; this cannot be studied in isolation but requires multidisciplinary integration in the curriculum at all levels. This can only be possible if academicians, teachers and students come forth to adopt traditional practices and knowledge systems on environment conservation. Together we can act #ForNature.

Oz defence deal prudent

It is great that India signed a defence cooperation deal with Australia on Thursday. It is prudent for a nation with hostile neighbours to have strategic allies. But our collaboration with the US and Australia should not send a wrong message about our role in the cold war China is engaged in with both countries.

Justice delayed

The news about Vijay Mallya's extradition to India from the UK being stalled due to a 'confidential' legal issue is shocking. There seems to be no regard for time-bound implementation of law anywhere. The UK jurisprudence seems no better than ours in this aspect. Justice delayed is justice denied.

Sign of nature's fury

This is with reference to Covid, poverty and environmental sustainability (June 5). Apart from climate summits held sporadically, it is regrettable that nations are yet to take tangible steps for environment conservation. In recent decades, we have witnessed frequent forest fires, flash floods and cyclones, all of which are a sign of nature's fury.

Maneka's remarks

Animal rights activist Maneka Gandhi should have brushed up her knowledge of Kerala before commenting on the tragic death of a pregnant elephant. She mistakenly said the incident in Palakkad happened in Malappuram, and her remarks on the people there have sparked waves of communal hatred. She should have confined her comments to the brutality of the act.

It is a matter of joy that the Byramangala Lake in Ramanagara is becoming clean during the lockdown. However, it will need tremendous effort to maintain it in the future as industrial effluents will start polluting the lake again unless special arrangements are made by the authorities soon.

Exemplary sense of duty

RPF Constable Inder Singh Yadav in Bhopal demonstrated an exemplary sense of duty by fetching a bottle of milk from outside the railway station and running behind a train to give it to the mother of a hungry three-month-old baby. 'NEP to solve post-Covid problems too'

All the debate, praise and criticism that the new National Education Policy (NEP) has earned over the past year aside, its implementation after the lockdown will prove just what a game-changer it is, said AICTE Chairman Anil Sahasrabudhe in conversation with S Vaidhyasubramaniam, Vice-Chancellor, SASTRA Deemed-to-be University, and senior journalist and author Kaveree Bamzai, on TNIE's Expressions, a series of live webcasts with people who matter.

Claiming that the new NEP will solve plenty of problems the pandemic and lockdown have caused, Sahasrabudhe said, "This will help us fight all sorts of problems in the education field which are going to occur in the future...With the sudden Covid-19 crisis, the central and the states have been busy firefighting the situation, otherwise it (NEP) would have been announced by now."

Responding to a question on rising importance of online education and testing in post-Covid world, he said in all likelihood, the adoption of digital practices would impact the next NIRF ranking. "In our NIRF footprint, whatever parameters were decided 4 years ago were based on certain presumptions. While the curriculum has to be revised continuously, ranking system also has to be changed according to requirements and society's aspirations. I am sure there will be parameters which will come in and have a greater significance based on the digital platform and usage."

One thing that is likely to feature in the NIRF framework is how ecologically sound your institution is, he added. "Priority will be given to UN Sustainable Goals to see how green our college campuses are in terms of using minimal resources, waste management, the energy produced. These factors need to be prioritised so that we drive home these practices and apply them wherever we go."

Speaking about the impact of the pandemic on the education sector in India, Sahasrabudhe said, "Since many universities abroad are not opening up due to Covid-19 and are going for online classes, many bright students would not like to lose a year... There are chances that bright students might take admission in IITs, IIMs, IISc and many good private universities. Many students will get into our Indian systems rather than going abroad for higher studies and saving in terms of dollar exchange. Our chances have brightened up."

He spoke about how, in order to take technical education to a larger audience, AICTE is translating the courses on the Swayam portal into eight Indian languages. "If you look at the entire Swayam portal, all the courses available are in English. Therefore, AICTE has taken up the task of translating these two-and-a-half thousand courses in eight major languages of India which will bring a big change," he said.

Fiasco: Lancet retracts study that raised doubts on HCQ use for corona

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

ONE of the world's most prestigious medical journals, The Lancet, has retracted a major study that had claimed that experimental treatment of Covid-19 patients with malaria drugs chloroquine and hydroxychloroquine may be worsening the disease outcome in many.

Based on the study published in the journal on May 22, the World Health Organisation had suspended the HCQ arm of its global Solidarity Trial that it is conducting in over 100 countries to see if five repurposed drugs or drug combinations can help cure virus infection.

However, a few days back it emerged that the study "Hydroxychloroquine or chloroquine with or without a macrolide for treatment of Covid-19: a multinational registry analysis" may have been flawed as concerns were raised on veracity of the data, on which it was based. It was revealed that the primary data used in the scientific paper was provided by a company called Surgisphere, which though claims to have one of the largest and fastest hospital databases in the world but had no scientific expertise in data collection.

As it emerged that these papers would have been faulty, the WHO had resumed the HCQ arm of the Solidarity Trial earlier this week.

In a statement issued, The Lancet meanwhile said, "They were unable to complete an independent audit of the data underpinning their analysis. As a result, they have concluded that they can no longer vouch for the veracity of primary data sources." The author of the study said, "We launched an independent third-party peer review based on Surgisphere Corporation and its founder and the co-author of the study, Sapan Desai, to evaluate the origination of the database elements, to confirm the completeness of the database, and to replicate the analyses presented in the paper," said the authors.

They added, "Our independent peer reviewers informed us that Surgisphere would not transfer the full dataset, client contracts, and the full ISO audit report to their servers for analysis as such transfer would violate client agreements and confidentiality requirements."

"We deeply apologise to you, the editors, and the journal readership for any embarrassment or inconvenience that this may have caused," said their note.

As Covid cases surge, other services take further hit

600 more hospitals diverted in past weeks for treatment of severe cases

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA @ New Delhi

WITH Covid 19 cases surging in India, more and more hospitals are getting diverted to treat the infected patients, suggesting that other healthcare services that have been badly affected in the pandemic could get hit further.

An analysis of the figures on Covid-19 facilities by the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare suggests that in last one month, there has been over 22 per cent increase in the centres meant exclusively or mainly only for moderately or severely sick Covid patients. In other words, within a month there has been a further decline of over 22 per cent in hospitals that would have catered to other patients.

On May 7, a month after the Centre decided to prepare a three-tier healthcare delivery system for Covid-19, the number of Dedicated Covid Hospitals (DCHs) and Covid Health Centres (CHCs) stood at 2,719. As on Friday, this number has reached 3,319 with 957 earmarked as DCHs and 2,362 designated as CHCs. It shows that within a four-week period, 600 hospitals across India were diverted to treat Covid-19 patients. There is another category, Covid Care Centres, and their number now stands at 7,529.

Health ministry officials conceded that other healthcare services have taken a backseat and the situation could get worse in days to come. "As cases climb, needs of millions of others needing healthcare could be ignored and that means more suffering, bad disease outcomes and even deaths for thousands," a senior official told this newspaper, adding that the situation is mainly worrisome in cities like Mumbai, Delhi, Ahmadabad, Chennai and Pune. Another official pointed out that many hospitals that had almost shut down during early days of lockdown have now been converted into Covid facilities.

Public health experts said since a large number of deaths are of those with non-communicable diseases (NCDs) like diabetes and cardiovascular conditions, ensuring continuum of care (maintaining continuity of the medical care delivered to a patient) for those with multiple morbidities is paramount. "One strategy that could be considered is developing a database of those with NCDs or chronic conditions who were on treatment or hospitalised in the past year and proactively contacting them to check on their health status and need for follow-up visits and medications," said Dr Oommen John, a public health researcher with the George Institute of Global Health in New Delhi. "...Also frontline healthcare workers should focus on routine healthcare delivery so that essential services can continue while the contact tracing and testing activities are undertaken by special public health response teams."

Dr Smit Srivastava, a Raipur cardiologist, said, "Firstly, there should be a surge plan for exponential number of Covid-19 patients and second for continuing the health services for non-acute as well as chronic illnesses."

Migrants who want to go back home should be sent within 15 days: SC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

Court was told 4,200 trains have transported over one crore migrants till date | FILE

THE Supreme Court on Friday reserved its verdict on a PIL highlighting plight of millions of migrant workers who were stranded in various parts of India due to Covid-19 lockdown and said that all states must create employment for migrants.

A bench headed by Justice Ashok Bhushan, after hearing detailed arguments from advocates from Centre and states, said all migrants who want to go back home should be sent within 15 days and said it will pronounce the verdict on Tuesday. The court was hearing suo motu cognisance of migrant workers' miseries case and had ordered states to provide them free food, shelter and travel.

During the hearing today, the bench suggested all migrants should be registered at block and district level and states should take care of them and said, "States will have to generate employment for them. They should facilitate their movement if they want to go back to other states for work."

The Centre denied that any deaths on Sharamik Special Trains took place due to lack of food or water or for want of treatment. He said more than 4,200 trains sent home over one crore migrant workers and said that the maximum numbers of trains have gone to Uttar Pradesh and Bihar. Ninety percent of migrant workers had already been sent home, he said.

The court also remarked that no state can refuse to take back migrant workers.

CAPPING TREATMENT PRICE

SC seeks reply from Centre on Covid fee in pvt hospitals

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Friday asked Centre to file its response on a petition demanding fixing of rates of Covid-19 treatment in private hospitals.

The bench comprising Justices Ashok Bhushan, M.R. Shah and V. Ramasubramanian directed a copy of the petition to be given to Solicitor General Tushar Mehta and ask Centre to respond in a week's time.

The court was hearing a petition filed by Kolkata resident Avishek Goenka, who stated has submitted that according to insurers, private hospitals are charging for Covid-19 treatment as per their whims and fancies.

The petition also claimed that insurance companies are not settling full medical bills, citing the pandemic and sought full settlement of claims by the insurers within 24 hours of receipt of claims, at least to the extent of the minimum cost of treatment fixed by the authorities.

The petition also submitted that the government authorities are not being able to offer enough beds in private hospitals for post Covid-19 infection treatment, even to those who can afford it. In a similar petition, the court sought to know from private hospitals if they were ready to charge Covid patients the rates fixed under the central government's Ayushman Bharat scheme for their treatment.

Ayushman Bharat provides a health insurance cover to the country's poor and downtrodden.

Private hospitals face losses amid Covid scare

Senior advocates Harish Salve, Mukul Rohatgi, appearing for different associations of private hospitals, opposed the court's suggestions on the ground it was not financially viable. They said hospitals' revenues have dropped by 70% as people are not visiting.

Devoid of jobs, couple sells baby for ₹3,000

Police recover two-and-half-month girl from relative's house

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Kolkata

A domestic help, who is jobless since the past three months after her employers asked her not to come fearing Covid-19 infection, and her daily wage earner husband living in West Midnapore district, allegedly sold their two-and-a-half-month daughter for ₹3,000. The heart wrenching plight of the jobless couple came to light on Thursday after police and officers of NGO Childline recovered the infant from a house in Howrah. The child was admitted to a state-run hospital and her parents are still at large.

Agnishwar Chowdhury, sub-divisional police officer of Ghatal, said the child was recovered from a couple's house who are distant relatives of the real parents. "After investigation, police came to know the child was sold for ₹3,000," he said.

Lockdown claimed their source of income

Bapan Dhara and his wife Tapasi, residents of Ghatal, became jobless during lockdown. Tapasi used to work as a domestic help while Bapan was a daily wage earner. The Covid-19 lockdown took away their livelihoods.

According to eyewitnesses' statements, Bapan Dhara and his wife Tapasi, residents of Ghatal, became jobless during lockdown. "The couple's neighbours told us Tapasi used to work as a domestic help. Most families are not allowing their domestic helps at their houses. Tapasi lost her job. Bapan, too, was a daily wage earner and he, too, had no work. We learnt the couple was struggling to procure food for the child," said a police officer.

The police came to know Bapan has a distant relative living in Howrah district. "The first tip off we received was from Bapan's neighbours who could not find the child anywhere. They did not hear her crying. When we started probing, we came to know about Bapan's distance relatives, who are a childless couple," said the officer.

Sandip Kumar Bose, the district child protection officer, said the infant would be kept at the hospital for three to four days. "After that we will send the child to a state-run home," he said. Shankar Dalui, MLA of Ghatal, said he was not ready to accept that the couple sold the infant because of fund crunch. "The state government has floated several schemes for the poor. Rice is being given free of cost. There are other schemes as well. Even after this if the couple sold their daughter it is unthinkable," he said.

Labour shortage post worker exodus

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @Mumbai

LABOUR shortage is hitting both industrial and non-industrial sectors in Maharashtra where strict regulations on movement are implemented to check Covid-19 spread. Farmers are especially facing the crunch as sowing season is right upon them. Labourers are mostly sourced from adjoining states.

When it comes to industries, the automobile sector that is already reeling due to dipping sales, is badly hit due to reduced workforce. Dilip Batwal, secretary, Federation of Pune Chakan Industries, confirmed industries are facing shortage of labour. "Currently, only 40 per cent of employees are engaged after government relaxing lockdown norms. In this belt, many major automobile firms like Bajaj, Tata, BMW, Mercedes have plants employing over six lakh people," he said. "Many migrants want to return but there is no travel facility to bring them back. The central government should start trains and the state government should lift restrictions over travelling within the state."

Many automobile companies in Pune's Chakan industrial belt are facing difficulties in meeting their export target. Sugata Sen, deputy director general of Society of Indian Automobile Manufacturer, said that as many plants just started operations, it is very difficult for them given the labour shortage. "Once the operation is in force, then we will do an assessment."

Entire MHA media unit transferred

Environment day: Reclaiming landfill in govt focus

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

ON 'World Environment Day, the Ministry of Urban affairs launched advisories on landfill reclamation and sewage management practices.

At the release event, Union Housing and Urban Affairs Minister Hardeep Singh Puri said almost all of urban India is open-defecation free now. "Scientific processing of solid waste which was mere 18 per cent at the start of the Swachh Bharat Mission in 2014 has more than tripled to 65 per cent."

Over 10,000 hectares of urban land is locked in as dumpsites in India. These dumpsites generate methane and other gases which contribute to global warming, the advisory said, adding that the reclamation project must adopt an integrated approach to propose all the activities required for dumpsite remediation. "The treatment and disposal of legacy municipal solid waste) can be done by bioremediation. A total station survey or drone-mapping of any landfill/dumping site must be done prior to start of the project. Hence, it is suggested to ensure a precursor study with history of the site," it stated.

Urban Local Bodies were asked to set up an eco-friendly and non-polluting processing system for reducing the impact of the dumping site on their adjacent areas.

Engineering institute not to take test

The Indian Institute of Engineering Science and Technology (IIEST), Shibpur will assess students in the end-semester exams by factoring in their performance in the previous semesters and mid-semester exams. The decision was taken because the institute does not want students to come and give exams on paper during Covid-19 pandemic and also some students do not have access to internet connectivity. Fifty percent weightage in theory papers will be given based on the Semester Grade Point Average (SGPA) of the previous semesters. The best performance in the semesters will be taken into account.

Rage subsides among George Floyd protesters, focus shifts to reform

Mood turns sombre after cops show solidarity, symbols of slavery & Confederacy come down

George Floyd's casket is carried to a hearse after a memorial service in Minneapolis. On the right, healthcare workers attend a Black Lives Matter rally in New York | AFP

ATLANTA

THE tenor of the protests set off by the death of George Floyd at the hands of police has taken a turn from the explosive anger that has fueled the setting of fires, breaking of windows and other violence to a quiet, yet more forceful, grassroots call for more to be done to address racial injustice.

Many of the protests were more subdued for a second night as marches turned into memorials for Floyd, who was the focus of a heartfelt tribute Thursday in Minneapolis that drew family members, celebrities, politicians and civil rights advocates. At his service, strong calls were made for meaningful changes in policing and the criminal justice system.

And in a sign protesters' voices are being heard, more symbols of slavery and the Confederacy came down. Alabama's port city of Mobile removed a statue of a Confederate naval officer early Friday after days of protests there, while Fredericksburg, Virginia, removed a 176-year-old slave auction block from downtown after several years of efforts by the NAACP. Other Confederate symbols have come down around the South in recent days as calls to remove them intensified during protests over Floyd's death.

Also Friday, in Jacksonville , Florida, a large group of players, coaches, front office officials from the city's NFL teams and their families wore Black Lives Matter T-shirts as they walked from TIAA Bank Field to the sheriff's office headquarters to raise awareness of racial injustice.

At demonstration sites around the country, protesters said the quieter mood is the result of several factors: the new and upgraded criminal charges against the police officers involved in Floyd's arrest; a more conciliatory approach by police who have marched with them or taken a knee to recognize their message; and the realization that the burst of rage after Floyd's death is not sustainable.

Protests to go on

Despite the shift in tone, protesters have shown no sign that they are going away and, if anything, are emboldened to stay on the streets to push for police reforms.

In New York City, Miguel Fernandes said there were "a lot more nights to go" of marching because protesters hadn't got what they wanted.

Trump was apparently referring to the surge in employment (see the sidebar on the right). Agencies

The US economy regained 2.5 million jobs in May as coronavirus pandemic shutdowns began to ease, sending the unemployment rate falling to 13.3%

QUICK TO REHIRE

The May job gain, which confounded economists' expectations of another round of severe losses, suggests that thousands of stores, restaurants, gyms and other companies reopened and rehired more quickly than many analysts had forecast

Economists had been expecting job losses of more than eight million and a jobless rate of 20% or higher

IMPACT OF PROTESTS

For hiring to continue at a solid pace, businesses will probably need to see signs that consumers are starting to resume their pre-outbreak habits of shopping and dining out

Street protests over George Floyd's killing that led to vandalism and looting did not affect Friday's figures. But business closings related to the unrest could show up in the June government report

Workers on temporary layoff declined by 2.7 million to 15.3 million

Brazil overtakes Italy after surge in virus deaths

RIO DE JANEIRO

BRAZIL'S death toll from the Covid-19 surpassed Italy's to become the third-highest in the world, as Europe emerged from punishing lockdowns.

The bleak figures from Brazil underlined the toll the virus is taking in Latin America, the latest epicenter in the pandemic, even as Europe was emerging from its darkest days -- with the latest help coming from a new 600-billion-euro ($674 billion) economic stimulus measure announced by the European Central Bank.

Brazil's death toll topped 34,000, while cases Mexico, Peru, Ecuador and Chile continued to mount.

Impoverished Haiti, with its fragile health system, is also seeing worrying trends as infections and deaths rise in the face of swirling rumours and disinformation about the severity of the disease.

New record toll

After Brazil reported a new 24-hour record death toll, its fatalities stand behind only the United States, with more than 108,000 deaths, and Britain, with nearly 40,000.

Far-right President Jair Bolsonaro has fiercely criticised coronavirus stay-at-home measures, arguing that they are needlessly hurting the economy.

Brazil is the hardest-hit country in Latin America, though Mexico reported a record number of new infections for the second straight day, with 4,442. And in Peru, desperate residents lined up to buy oxygen tanks for their loved ones, as the government declared oxygen a "strategic health resource" amid an acute shortage. AFP

British airline mulls lawsuit over 14-day quarantine

LONDON

BRITISH Airways' parent company is mulling legal action over the UK government's planned 14-day quarantine on international air passengers, its boss revealed on Friday.

Willie Walsh, chief executive of airline conglomerate IAG, told Sky News the quarantine, which comes into force on Monday and aims to prevent a second wave of coronavirus, was "irrational" and "disproportionate" at a time when most flights remain grounded.

Irish no-frills rival carrier Ryanair added separately that it would join any legal action against the quarantine.

"We think it's irrational, we think it's disproportionate, and we are giving consideration to a legal challenge to this legislation," Walsh said on Friday. International arrivals from Monday will be required to self-isolate for a fortnight. AFP

'SEND IN THE TROOPS' OP-ED DIDN'T MEET STANDARDS: NYT

In an embarrassing about-face, The New York Times said on Thursday that an opinion piece it ran by US Senator Tom Cotton advocating the use of federal troops to quell nationwide protests about police mistreatment of black Americans did not meet its standards. Cotton's op-ed, titled "Send in the Troops" and first posted online late Wednesday, caused a revolt among Times journalists, with some saying it endangered black employees. Some staff members called in sick on Thursday in protest. The Times said in a statement that a "rushed editorial process" led to publication of a piece that did not meet its standards. Cotton taunted the paper on Twitter, accusing it of "surrendering to the mindless woke mob."

SBI's FY20 profit soars on stake sale, lower NPAs

However, the bank's net profit for Q4 plunged over 35 per cent sequentially

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Hyderabad

STATE Bank of India (SBI) on Friday announced a historic rise in its annual net profit, while Q4 standalone net profit too shot up 323 per cent year-on-year (YoY) at ₹3,581 crore as against ₹838 crore recorded a year ago. Sequentially though, SBI's profit plunged over 35 per cent.

Despite achieving historic profits, the bank decided to refrain from taking major loan exposures this fiscal year to limit asset quality pressures and focus on diversifying its loan book across industry segments.

By the bank's own admission, its earlier projection of a double digit credit growth (12 per cent) in FY21 is unlikely to be met.

According to chairman Rajnish Kumar, less than a quarter of the bank's borrowers availed moratorium, which is reason enough for SBI not to fear higher slippages. But Kumar warned that June quarter needs a close watch, while clarity will emerge during September quarter.

About 1.28 lakh MSMEs availed the emergency credit line against which the bank disbursed about ₹2,500 crore, but housing loans could see a disruption this fiscal.

Meanwhile, SBI's Q4 profit was supported by a one-time gain of ₹2,731 crore, courtesy the stake sale in SBI Cards done during the quarter. For the full year FY20, net profit stood at ₹14,488 crore, as against ₹862 crore in FY19--the bank's highest-ever annual profit. Operating profit rose to ₹68,133 crore from ₹55,436 crore. For the quarter under review, SBI made provisions worth ₹13,495 crore, of which provisions for NPAs stood at ₹11,894 crore. Provisions for IBC-related accounts stood at ₹5,767 crore.

> My feeling is that (customers availing moratorium) would not be significantly different than what they were in the first three months. It may even improve as we exit the lockdown
> Rajnish Kumar, chairman, SBI

Overall asset quality improved both during the quarter under review and in FY20. Gross NPAs reduced to ₹1.49 lakh crore from ₹1.72 lakh crore last year, while net NPAs fell to ₹51,871 crore from ₹65,895 crore. In percentage terms, gross and net NPA ratio stood at 6.15 and 2.23 per cent respectively. Net and non-interest income grew 11 and 23 per cent respectively during FY20, while total gross advances rose by 5 per cent.

Abu Dhabi's Mubadala to invest $1.2 bn in Jio

BISMAH MALIK @ Bengaluru

ABU Dhabi's second largest investor group Mubadala will invest $1.2 billion (₹9,093.6 crore) in Reliance's Jio platforms for a 1.85 per cent stake, taking the total investments in the Mukesh Ambani venture to ₹87,655.35 ($11.5 billion) for a combined 19 per cent stake in the digital unit. The latest deal, the sixth since April, values Jio Platforms at an equity value of ₹4.91 lakh crore and an enterprise value of ₹5.16 lakh crore.

Tech giant Facebook which bought a 9.99 per cent stake in Jio for $5.7 billion (₹43, 574 crore) was the first investor in Jio Platforms, followed by four other investments by global Private Equity (PE) funds including Silver Lake Partners' (₹5,655.75 crore) investment for a 1.15 per cent stake, Vista Equity Partners' ₹11,367 crore investment for a 2.32 per cent stake, General Atlantic's ₹6,598.38 crore for a 1.34 per cent stake and KKR's investment worth ₹11,367 crore for a 2.32 per cent stake.

Ambani had earlier indicated that his focus will now be on aggressively growing the digital commerce unit--Jio--which also houses units operating is several segments like entertainment and telecom, which now have a combined subscriber base of over 300 million. Ambani's ability to attract investments from five major American firms and now an Abu Dhabi investment major is being seen as a tactical move to prepare for Jio's listing in global markets in a year.

Abu Dhabi-based Mubadala set up its venture arm in 2017 and has invested across various sectors with a focus on technology, such as cognitive computing, ICT infrastructure, telecom and satellite operations across US, Europe and Middle East.

Ambani had earlier said that he is aiming to reduce his company's net debt to zero by March 2021 through the stake sales in Jio as well as RIL's ₹53,215 crore rights issue.

IL&FS Transportation FY20 net loss at ₹17K cr

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

IL&FS Transportation Networks, subsidiary of the debt-laden Infrastructure Leasing and Financial Services (IL&FS), on Friday reported a standalone loss of ₹17,000.32 crore for fiscal year 2019-20 as against a standalone profit of ₹251.76 crore reported during the financial year 2018-19. The group company did not provide figures for the fourth quarter of the fiscal 2019-20.

The troubled company cited Covid-19 disruptions as one of the reasons for its mammoth loss. However, several other reasons related to a drastic fall in its business activity since irregularities in the company were reported earlier is said to have dented its profits.

"As a result of the spread of Covid-19, economic uncertainties have arisen which are likely to negatively impact the timing of claim receivable by the Special Purpose Vehicle (SPVs) and asset monetisation, which may result into additional impairment of investments, trade receivables, loans and other receivables...Other financial impact could also occur though such potential impact is unknown," the company said in a statement.

During the last fiscal year, it had reported sharp decline in its standalone total income to ₹786.24 crore, as against ₹4,709.48 crore a year ago. Its total expenses during the last fiscal year stood at ₹3,014.37 crore as against ₹4,377.69 crore in previous fiscal. It has also suffered consistent downgrades in its credit ratings since September 2018, as a result of which the company's ability to raise funds has been substantially impaired, and normal business operations curtailed. "These conditions indicate the existence of a material uncertainty that may cast significant doubt on its ability to continue as a going concern," it said.

Companies pivot strategies toward anti-Covid products

BINITA JAISWAL @ Chennai

THE corporate sector is scrambling to convert the Covid-19 pandemic into an opportunity by diversifying their businesses and developing innovative products focused on ensuring safety during the outbreak.

Gauging the fact that the pandemic is here to stay for some time, the companies have swiftly diverted their focus on developing anti-Covid-19 products to take advantage of a ready market.

CavinKare, a consumer brand, on Friday launched a product focused on a particular concern for many households--whether their groceries are clean. The company introduced 'SaaFoo' cleansing liquid sachets specifically made for washing of fruits, vegetables, meat and seafood. The company said SaaFoo washes have been designed to carefully remove germs, chemicals and pesticides that may be carried inadvertently in food. It also claimed that the product was made with 100 per cent food grade ingredients and left no aftertaste.

Venkatesh Vijayaraghavan, director and CEO, Personal Care & Alliance, CavinKare said, "In the wake of Covid-19, CavinKare has pivoted its efforts to lend a hand of safety for consumers across the country. Introduction of sachets in this category would help millions of households to ensure their family's safety while consuming food".

Meanwhile, Nippon Paint (India) has forayed into the health and wellness segment with the launch of a new brand: MEDIFRESH. The company has also started manufacturing of hand sanitisers, facial masks and gloves to cater to a burgeoning market. It also plans to subsequently introduce a range of other products like surface disinfectants, aerosols, full cover gear and face shields.

Similarly outdoor gear maker Wildcraft India, which entered the Personal Protective Gear (PPG) segment recently, has ramped up its production and launched a new range of re-usable and eco-friendly masks, PPE coveralls and a technical rucksack, designed especially for defence establishments.

Siddharth Sood, Wildcraft cofounder, said, "We strongly believe that what is today a health crisis and is evolving into an economic crisis, will also turn into a global environmental crisis with the mammoth amount of non-biodegradable disposables being left behind in its wake". These products are available in 1,000 cities presently, he added.

MSIL sells over a lakh units after CNG shift

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

Maruti Suzuki India Ltd (MSIL), India's largest carmaker, announced on Friday that it has achieved its highest ever sales of eco-friendly CNG-powered cars in fiscal year 2019-20--selling 106,443 factory-fitted CNG vehicles across India.

According to the firm, it has witnessed a 15.5 per cent CAGR increase in its CNG sales over the past five years. Going ahead, MSIL is expected to increase its thrust on CNG-powered vehicles since it has stopped selling diesel-powered vehicles and has no plans to launch electric vehicles in the near future.

Kenichi Ayukawa, Managing Director & CEO, Maruti Suzuki, said, "The government is working to rapidly increase CNG fuel pumps network in the country. There has been a phenomenal growth in number of CNG stations in last six years with over 50 per cent of growth coming in the last year alone. With the government's clear focus, spread of CNG stations is set to increase significantly."

Maruti Suzuki currently offers its customers several options of factory-fitted CNG-powered cars including Alto, WagonR, Eeco, Tour S, Ertiga and Super Carry. MSIL aims to sell the next set of a million green vehicles at a much faster pace. This 'Mission Green Million' will play a critical role in democratising green cars, the firm said. During the Auto Expo held in February, MSIL had said that it would offer a host of options for customers across CNG, hybrid and electric cars.

TETE-A-TETE

JSW Paints sets eyes on hygiene segment

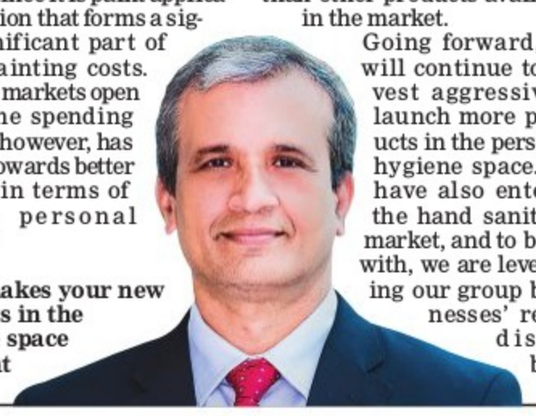
JSW Paints, a part of the $14-billion JSW Group, is ramping up investments in the hygiene space as it aims to disrupt the ₹50,000-crore domestic paints market. Led by Parth Jindal, the son of Sajjan Jindal, the relatively new entrant in the paints industry has launched a new range of products including anti-bacterial paints to take on rivals such as Asian Paints and Berger Paints. The company aims to clock a revenue of ₹2,500 crore over the next three years, A S Sundaresan, Joint MD and CEO, JSW Paints tells Sesa Sen in an interview. Excerpts:

How has the Covid-19 pandemic impacted your business and when do you expect demand to start picking up again?
While business activity has remained muted in the last 2-3 months, we expect demand to come back around the festive season i.e. in another three-four months.

This would be driven by consumer spending on renovating their houses around Diwali, even if the trend is not as strong as in pre-Covid seasons.

In terms of cost, we aren't seeing a major change in consumer behaviour since it is paint application that forms a significant part of painting costs.

As markets open up, the spending pattern, however, has shifted towards better quality in terms of safety, personal hygiene.



What makes your new products in the hygiene space different from those launched by your competitors?
JSW Paints has launched an anti-bacterial paint called JSW Paints Halo Safe Home.

While it is true that a few other players are also present in the segment, those paints are just for walls. Our range is for all three surfaces—Wall, Wood and Metals. Priced at ₹300-350 a litre, Halo Safe Home is priced 15-20 per cent lower than other products available in the market.

Going forward, we will continue to invest aggressively, launch more products in the personal hygiene space. We have also entered the hand sanitiser market, and to begin with, we are leveraging our group businesses' retail distribution to market this new product.

What are your plans for growth going ahead? Do you have a target you hope to achieve?
We have set ourselves a target of achieving five per cent market share in southern and western regions of India over the next three years.

We are looking at entering Gujarat in the next 2-3 months and foraying into the northern and eastern regions as well in three years. We began with a small base in April 2019, but now our paints business is growing at a healthy rate which calls for expansion. We plan to double our distribution network by taking the retailers' count to 2,000 by March and treble the number of contractors which stands at 6,000. With these, we hope the paints division will fetch a revenue of about ₹2,500 crore by the end of 2024.

ANTI-DOPING SOP

PPE & shields for sample collection

INDRANEEL DAS @Chennai

NEXT time dope control officers (DCOs) and anti-doping officials come calling for collecting urine and blood samples don't be surprised if they resemble a person straight out of a Sci-Fi movie. They will be wearing personal protective equipment, face masks and shields while collecting samples from athletes. Maintaining a 2m distance and hygiene, carrying sanitisers and wearing gloves, are some of the standard operating procedures (SOPs) the National Anti-Doping Agency (NADA) has put together to restart collections by this month at least.

The agency is planning to take self-declarations from DCOs that they are Covid-free. According to a top NADA official, even the athletes would be required to give a declaration that they are not infected by the virus before collection. There will be complete distancing between the two at all times, even during documentation.

NADA has submitted its proposal to the sports ministry and is awaiting clarifications because of the various restrictions in place all over the country. Though an autonomous body, NADA officials need guidelines from the ministry to visit various sporting venues across the country, especially under Sports Authority of India (SAI) where top athletes train. "We have requested the ministry to give us some clarification regarding visits of DCOs at various SAI centres across (when they open) the country," said NADA director general Navin Agarwal on Friday.

The agency is also in touch with the sports ministry on testing athletes at NIS Patiala and Bengaluru. However, entry is banned at both centres where athletics, weightlifting and hockey teams are training. "We have asked the sports ministry about this," said the NADA DG. However, since there are no events right now, NADA will first test athletes at various centres. "Our priority will be Olympic bound athletes (those who have qualified or are on the verge) and athletes in the Registered Testing Pool once testing resumes." There was no sample collection in April and May.

Collection of samples from home and surprise visits will also take some time as free movement of DCOs will not be possible for some time. Transportation of samples too might pose a problem. Without elaborating, Agarwal said, "We have some kits at different strategic locations".

"There are different restrictions in different states and e-pass is mandatory for travel. Collection and transportation need to be worked out," said Agarwal. "Even transportation of samples needs to be sorted. We have to send them either to Doha or Belgium for testing." National Dope Testing Laboratory in New Delhi is still under suspension since last August.

Jobs and pay secure in BCCI

Board okay with interim steps, non-committal about future if IPL doesn't happen this year

ATREYO MUKHOPADHYAY @Chennai

CRICKET boards in other countries and many business establishments in India have been forced to take cost control measures following the economic tremors of the global lockdown caused by the Covid-19 pandemic. Almost every sector is experiencing pay cuts and job losses. The BCCI is an exception in the sense that it is not thinking in terms of downsizing yet.

Employees of the BCCI have not had salaries slashed. Neither have jobs been lost. Excluding players and coaches, the BCCI has close to 100 employees at its Mumbai headquarters and the National Cricket Academy in Bengaluru. There are around 20 more on retainership. Salaries start from ₹30,000-₹35,000 per month for office staff and go up to ₹10 crore a year for the CEO.

"We took some cost-cutting measures even before the pandemic, after taking charge in October last year. But it has not gone to the extent yet where we have to think of pay cuts or layoffs. As of now, those steps have not been considered. We have cut cost on travel, hospitality, vendors and other fronts," BCCI treasurer Arun Dhumal told this daily on Friday.

Other than the staff, the BCCI pays fixed annual fees to 27 contracted players. In categories A, B, C and D, this amount is ₹7 crore, ₹5 crore, ₹3 crore and ₹1 crore, respectively. There are 22 contracted woman players divided in three categories, who receive annual sums of ₹50 lakh, ₹30 lakh and ₹10 lakh. Plus, there are coaches. As of now, there is no pay cut for them either.

The major part of the BCCI's income comes from telecast rights of IPL and bilateral matches played on Indian soil. In the 2019-20 season, two ODIs against South Africa in March got cancelled due to the pandemic. The IPL has not been cancelled yet, but if it is not held this year, the BCCI will lose around ₹3500 crores which might force officials to rethink.

"Other than the IPL, a limited-over tour by England scheduled in September is also uncertain. If you don't receive the sum that you use to pay players and others, then you have to think of something. The IPL not taking place will obviously have a huge impact. The situation will be evaluated in due course and decisions will be taken accordingly," said Dhumal.

The BCCI is keen on staging the IPL around October if the T20 World Cup in Australia is cancelled, but it depends on the situation in India. Even the postponement of IPL has led to losses, considering that the BCCI has lost out on the interest for the money it would have received in March had the IPL been held as scheduled from March to May.

Domestic players also get a share of the BCCI's TV revenue. So IPL and other matches not happening may also burn a hole in their pockets. Dhumal, however, said that will be the last option. "We have not considered that. It is the last thing that we will do."

Sudeva, FCBU keen on I-League bids

AYANTAN CHOWDHURY @New Delhi

After All India Football Federation (AIFF) invited bids for the 2020-21 I-League, Delhi-based Sudeva FC have been one of the first to respond. FC Bengaluru United (FCBU), part of this season's unfinished second division, have also shown interest.

However, AIFF is looking at clubs from non I-League centres and that might dent FCBU's hopes. "The bids have been invited from prospective team owners from New Delhi, Ranchi, Jaipur, Jodhpur, Bhopal, Lucknow and Ahmedabad, amongst others," AIFF said.

Sudeva co-owner Vijay Hakari confirmed that the club will send in its bid as soon as the invitation process starts. "We were looking forward to this. Kids at the club are excited about the chance to join the I-League. We intend to make it happen." The club was formed in 2014 by Hakari and Anuj Gupta and played in the second division in 2016-17.

They are not perturbed that ISL has replaced I-League as the country's top tier. "Second tier status does not matter. If we do get entry, we want to field as many local players as possible because the threat of relegation will not be applicable in the first season," he added. The club wants to play home matches at Ambedkar Stadium.

FCBU want to ensure Bengaluru again becomes an I-League destination. "We welcome the AIFF announcement. We hope to participate in the process. We are stable economically, investing in infrastructure and have performed well in the 2nd Division I-League. We hope to bring Bengaluru back in the I-League," owner Gaurav Manchanda said.

AIFF is looking at one club. "As per the invitation to tender, the entity that wins the bid will be granted the right to own and operate a new football club from 2020 onwards. The club will have the opportunity (subject to qualification) to compete in AFC club competitions."

Covid-19 tied to stroke in healthy young people

Patients in their 30s, 40s and 50s had brain attacks typically seen among 70 & 80-yr-olds

NEW STUDY

WASHINGTON: Healthy young people may have an increased risk of stroke if they are infected with Covid-19, whether or not they show symptoms, according to a small observational study.

Researchers at Thomas Jefferson University in the US, and colleagues analysed Covid-19 patients with stroke from March 20 until April 10 at their institutions.

The strokes they observed were unlike what they usually see, according to the study published on Thursday in the journal Neurosurgery.

"We were seeing patients in their 30s, 40s and 50s with massive strokes, the kind that we typically see in patients in their 70s and 80s," said Pascal Jabbour from Thomas Jefferson University.

The study examined and characterised strokes in Covid-19 patients, done in collaboration with surgeons from NYU Langone Medical Center in New York, US.

"Although we have to stress that our observations are preliminary, and based on observations from 14 patients, what we have observed is worrying," said Jabbour.

"Young people, who may not know they have the coronavirus, are developing clots that cause major stroke," he said.

The researchers examined 14 patients who had come into their neurointerventional room for stroke.

Eight patients were male, six were female, 50 per cent did not know they had Covid-19, while the rest were already being treated for other symptoms of the disease when they developed stroke. The study found that mortality rate in these Covid-19 stroke patients is 42.8 per cent and the typical mortality from stroke is around 5 to 10 per cent. About 42 per cent of the stroke coronavirus positive patients studied were under the age of 50. Most strokes occur in people over the age of 65, the authors wrote.

Previous studies have shown that the coronavirus enters human cells via a very specific access point — a protein on human cells called ACE2, the researchers noted.

ACE2 is very abundant on cells that line blood vessels, the heart, kidney and the lungs.

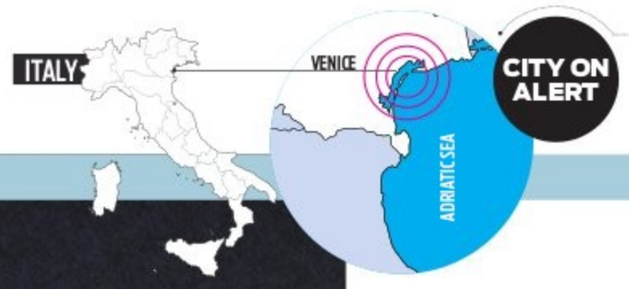
The coronavirus latches onto this protein and uses it as a gateway into the cell, where the virus can replicate, they said.

Jabbour and colleagues speculate that the virus may be interfering with this receptor's normal function, which controls blood flow in the brain, in addition to using it as an entry point to the cell.

People walking in flooded St Mark square in Venice on Thursday night | AP

121 CM — In 2002, the Italian city registered its highest June tide

117 CM — In 2016, the city recorded June's second highest June tide



CITY ON ALERT

1. Venice's flood sirens were activated and on the island of Pellestrina
2. It was one of the worst-hit areas by the 2019 November high tide
3. Venice authorities didn't put out pedestrian bridges, which are usually only used in the peak "acqua alta" season from September to April

EXFILE

FLOODS IN VENICE, AGAIN

A quarter of Venice has been submerged by a near-record high tide for June, a time of year when such flooding is rare. In November 2019, the city was flooded when waters peaked at 1.87 metres covering almost 80 per cent of the city famous for its canals and history. We take a look

116 CM — The water level in the lagoon city reached 116 centimetres on Thursday

3RD HIGHEST — This is the third-highest mark recorded for the month of June

25% — of the lagoon city has been flooded, Venice's sea monitoring agency claims

REASON

The unusual high tide in June has been caused by the combination of low atmospheric pressure and the full Moon

Venice's sea monitoring agency blamed a storm in the Atlantic that brought heavy winds and rain to northern Italy

RARE EVENT

Venice has only seen high tides over 100cm in June four times, in the last 20 YRS

ACQUA ALTA

The Italians use the terms Acqua alta to describe the exceptional tide peaks that occur periodically in the northern Adriatic Sea

The phenomenon occurs mainly between autumn and spring, when the astronomical tides are reinforced by prevailing seasonal winds

Main winds involved are the sirocco, which blows north along the Adriatic Sea and the bora, which has a specific local effect due to the lagoon

Why floods?

Venice is a series of islands built on wooden poles in a shallow lagoon, separated by canals and connected by bridges. As the lagoon is connected to the Adriatic Sea, when tides fuelled by the wind surges into the lagoon, it floods Venice

LAST FLOOD

Nov 2019 — The canal city experienced its second-highest tide since records began, reaching 187cm. It caused extensive damage to the city's historic buildings and to private property

€30 MN — The hotel and hospitality sector alone estimating repair costs of 30 million euros

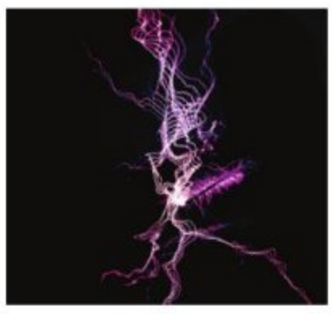
Electrifying fabric that zaps bacteria and germs

It was effective on 99.9% of bacteria and viruses we tested. It curbs proliferation or inactivates them

Spokeswoman of Murata

SHOCK SUIT

TOKYO: It's a shocking idea: a fabric that can produce small amounts of electricity powered by movement, allowing your clothing to zap microbes and bacteria as you go about your day. A pair of Japanese firms say that's exactly what their new product can do, and are touting it for everything from curbing body odour to offering the ideal material for protective gear like face masks.



The fabric jointly developed by electronics company Murata Manufacturing and Teijin Frontier, dubbed PIECLEX, generates power from the expansion and contraction of the material itself, including when worn by someone moving around.

The low voltages aren't strong enough to be felt by the wearer, but they effectively stop bacteria and viruses from multiplying inside the fabric, the companies said.

"It has been effective on 99.9 per cent of bacteria and viruses we tested, working to curb their proliferation or inactivate them," a Murata spokeswoman told AFP on Friday.

Carbon dioxide levels hit new record high

NO LOCKDOWN EFFECT

KENSINGTON: The world hit another new record high for heat-trapping carbon dioxide (CO_2) in the atmosphere, despite reduced emissions because of the coronavirus pandemic, scientists announced on Thursday.

Measurements of carbon dioxide, the chief human-caused greenhouse gas, averaged 417.1 parts per million at Mauna Loa, Hawaii, for the month of May, when carbon levels in the air peak, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said. That's 2.4 parts per million higher than a year ago.

Even though emissions of CO_2 from the burning of fossil fuels dropped by as much 17 per cent in April, it was a brief decline. Carbon dioxide can stay in the air for centuries, so the short-term reductions of new carbon pollution for a few months didn't have much of a big picture effect, said NOAA senior scientist Pieter Tans.

"It illustrates how difficult it is — what a huge job it is — to bring emissions down," Tans said. "We are really committing the Earth to an enormous amount of warming for a very large time."

Records with direct measurements go back to 1958. And carbon dioxide levels are now nearly 100 parts per million higher than then. That's a 31 per cent increase in 62 years.

"The rise in atmospheric carbon dioxide levels is relentless, and this means the costs of climate change to humans and the planet continue to rise relentlessly as well," said University of Michigan environment dean Jonathan Overpeck.

Carbon levels in the air were higher in the distant past before humans, Tans said.

Carbon dioxide levels peak in May because starting in late May, because growing plants suck up more of heat-trapping gas, causing carbon amounts in the air to drop, Tans said.

Fiji claims it is virus-free

COVID BATTLE

Fiji has declared itself free of the coronavirus — for now — after all 18 people who tested positive recovered. Prime Minister Frank Bainimarama said on Friday that the nation had just cleared the last of its active patients. He tweeted: "And even with our testing numbers climbing by the day, it's now been 45 days since we recorded our last case. With no deaths, our recovery rate is 100%". He added: "Answered prayers, hard work, and affirmation of science!" Fiji, which has a population of 9,00,000, imposed a lockdown in certain areas in April and put in place ongoing border restrictions.

New dinosaur species found in Argentina

WINGED RAPTOR

BUENOS AIRES: Fossilised remains of a new species of dinosaur that lived 90 million years ago have been discovered in Patagonia, Argentine palaeontologists announced on Thursday.

The winged dinosaur had legs similar to the velociraptor and experts believe it may hold the key to revealing information about the evolution of birds. The fossil remains, which measure less than a meter and a half in length, were discovered at a dig in the province of Rio Negro in Argentine Patagonia, 1,100 km from Buenos Aires, the scientific dissemination agency from the La Matanza university said.

It is a new species of carnivorous Paraves theropod that has been named Overoraptor chimentoi, explained Matias Motta, a researcher from the Argentine natural sciences museum. It is related to another species found 10,000 km away in Madagascar.

Overoraptor gets its name form the Spanish word 'overo', meaning piebald, in reference to the colouration of the fossil bones and the word 'raptor' from the Latin for thief. The species has been named after Dr Roberto Nicolas Chimento, who discovered the specimen.

The first remains were discovered in 2013, with more fossils found in a second dig in 2018.

"This animal had a very sharp claw on its index toe, which certainly was used to attack prey, and it had a long and graceful leg, which indicates it was a running animal," said Motta, the main author of the study published in The Science of Nature magazine. "It was certainly fast, agile and, like all its relatives, it would have been carnivorous," the author described. The second dig uncovered many bones, including an almost complete foot, tail vertebrae and parts of a wing, said palaeontologist Federico Brisson Egli.

BENGALURU BEATS

'COMMUNITY THEATRE IS THE WAY AHEAD FOR BENGALURU'

• Abhishek Iyengar
Theatre practitioner

I actively got involved in theatre in 2004, which required me to travel an average of 15 km from home in Basaveshwar Nagar to the venue. My area wasn't known for any sort of culture or theatre activities, and hailing from a middle class family, I didn't have a vehicle to travel nor did I have the luxury to spend on autos. So my only option was taking a bus which meant I couldn't always make it on time.

It was during these times that I wondered why the concept of community theatre didn't exist in Bengaluru. Why is it that art is centralised? Is that the reason we don't have art happening in every nook and corner of the city? Today, as artistes are struggling during this pandemic, I feel community theatre or locality theatre is the perfect solution for the fraternity to recoup and continue performing.

In 2017, I was on a tour to France and Germany where I found this concept prevalent and booming. Imagine replicating it here with every locality having a space equipped with basic requirements where art can flourish. These spaces need to be developed by the city's local body, which can be either maintained by the local committee under the purview of the Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP). In times like the lockdown and social distancing, those in the green zone could have at least witnessed theatre at their doorstep. This would have helped theatre artistes too, both in terms of gaining visibility as well as helped performers financially.

SOLUTION: Community theatre is the way ahead for Bengaluru. However, the infrastructure needs to be provided. Nowadays, every area has a children's park, with many of them having a yoga kendra built by BBMP. These kendras should be restructured and remodelled to small intimate spaces with minimum light fixtures where performances can take place. This implementation requires just a little will power, thought process and change from both the government and artistes. A few new spaces can easily be built and it doesn't involve too much construction. Once built, it could become a space for children's theatre, workshops and shows. Theatre can really grow by leaps and bounds, and will ensure an enriched life for both the viewer and performer.

Priyanka Upendra

Looking back

Mentor, family friend, a jovial person... actor Priyanka Upendra (maiden name Trivedi) describes the late director in many ways as she recalls her fondest memories with him. Having worked with Chatterjee in multiple films, including his first Bengali film – Hothat Brishti – the actor shares how the director added his own personal touch to every project he took on. "He handpicked my sarees for the films too. Today, you have a costume designer to do that. But Basu da was very hands-on with every aspect of the film," she says, adding how he always called for packup around 6 or 7pm, choosing to then spend the next two hours eating and socialising with the cast and crew. "At the beginning of my career, I wasn't sure if I could do this. He instilled confidence in me and told me I had it in me," she says.

REEL TIME, REAL MEMORIES

Film director Basu Chatterjee's demise is being mourned by many, including Bengalureans who recall their fondest memories of the filmmaker's works

• Simran Ahuja

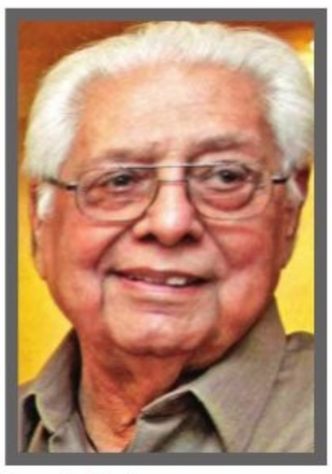
Do you remember how we watched all of Basu Chatterjee's films together?" Shamantha DS' WhatsApp groups were full of such messages when cinema lovers heard the news of the film director's death on Thursday. Known for introducing 'middle-of-the-road cinema' or narratives that shone a spotlight on the joys and struggles of the average middle class person, Chatterjee's films may have been made in Hindi but had a far-reaching effect. For Shamantha, a city-based multimedia professional in her 50s, the movies always come laced with a treasure trove of fond memories, complete with which theatre and show timing of the films she watched – Baton Baton Mein was a 6pm show at Alankar Theatre, Manzil a 4pm show at Tribhuvan Theatre.

"I may have been only 13 or 14 when I was watched Rajnigandha but I was so impressed with how real and natural the story was. From then on, I started paying attention to who the director of a film is," says Shamantha, who often watched these films in a group of six friends (comprising three pairs of sisters). "Hearing about his death made it seem like I lost a family member," she says, adding how she also watched some films with her mother and sister, who were also big fans of the director.



Basu Chatterjee

Like Shamantha, Usha Pillai carries memories of Chatterjee's films that are filled with sepia tones of fondness. The then teenager, like many others who enjoyed the director's works, was also drawn to the everyday simplicity of the stories, which included a widow's dreams for her daughter (Baton Baton Mein), wooing a girl at a bus stop (Chhoti Si Baat) and living in a crammed house (Piya Ka Ghar). "Despite the likes of Amitabh Bachchan, Dharmendra, and Rajesh Khanna ruling the roost with their commercial entertainers, movies by Basu Chatterjee and Hrishikesh Mukherjee still found an audience. Their slice-of-life movies were best enjoyed with your family and nothing short of a warm visit to your friend's house," says Pillai, who interestingly picked up the language through the Hindi films she watched.

While many of his works were in Hindi, they were able to transcend linguistic barriers, feels landscape engineer Nagesh Sidhanti. If Shamantha's memories are tied to the Bengaluru theatres in which she watched Chatterjee's films, Sidhanti's paint a picture of Doordarshan and many Sundays spent watching the director's works on the national channel. "Language was never a barrier because the films spoke the universal language of human emotions. Take, for example, Chhoti Si Baat. The heroine's (Vidya Sinha) facial expressions were enough to tell you if she approved or disapproved of something. Chatterjee seemed to rely on movements, shots and emotions more than talking portions," says the Kannadiga.

Such was his appreciation for the films that when Sidhanti heard the news of Chatterjee's demise, the 51-year-old could only recall feeling fortunate he lived through a time when he got to watch his films. "I'm glad he lived a full life and left behind so many memories to celebrate in his name."

Thoughtful strokes: Brush with new ideas

• Express Features

Being confined indoors has come as a boon for artist Gurudas Shenoy who has been utilising his time to execute a series of paintings inspired by a pool of thoughts. "There are so many ideas, but there's so much confusion. I am in an unfamiliar territory, a zone which I can't step out of. My works reflect this state of mind," says Shenoy, who has completed 12 paintings since April and plans to showcase them in an online exhibition alongside various artists in the coming months.

Taking us through the process of his paintings which comprises mixed elements – oil pastels, oil paints, acrylic medium and charcoal sketches – the city-based painter says each element has been blended in with care to obtain a desired result.

"Acrylics lend brightness and have a bit of plasticity, but oils control it, bringing in transparency. To get layer by layer abstraction and textures, these are feelings what I want to create," says Shenoy, adding that with a free hand arising from the ongoing pandemic, he has ventured into this project in a manner which is significantly different from his previous works, since he earlier mostly worked with a single medium.

Talking about the title of each piece, Shenoy points out that they are all self-explanatory, such as Borders not Boundaries, Unfamiliar Territory, Light from Within, etc. Ask him how many more pieces he plans to create, and he says, "I haven't decided when to stop, there are developments every day. As an artist, I take my time to explore, so I can't set a deadline for the same."

Having stepped out of his comfort zone, Shenoy states that at this point in time artists aren't bound by a deadline. He adds, "There's a lot of time on hand to introspect at this point. This a time to experiment, and more importantly for artists to do something they haven't so far. Each one reacts to a situation in a different way. The unfamiliar territory which has arisen through the recent turn of events has affected all of us. These paintings are a reaction to my thoughts."

Protestors hold placards

Uncertain career prospects, social distancing norms, and possible repercussions in store... Student protestors have little working in their favour. But those who attended the anti-CAA demonstration on June 3 at Maurya Circle, were determined to demand the release of jailed protestors. In numbers less than 100, and at a distance from each other, they asserted that while the element of fear is well within them, it's more about not protesting against oppression.

For a student protestor, the events back in February witnessed two of her friends being arrested, was a turning point for her. "I was in Delhi when the riots happened and I was part of the riot relief efforts. I saw how students from Jamia Millia, Jawaharlal Nehru University and Ambedkar University Delhi were leading relief work while the state barely lifted a finger. And now they've arrested these students," says the protestor who did not want to be named.

Agreed another protestor, who also did not wish to be named. "I want to ensure a safer space to grow up in," she says, adding, "Going out to protest during the pandemic is not safe but nor is silence." She shares how they protested for 30 minutes on bikes and held up posters.

Another protestor said, "We have no idea of what lies ahead with the current government, which seems to have an agenda to exclude minorities from the country."

Questions were also raised with respect to the 'Free Kashmir' poster, which a protestor claims was misquoted. She added, "If we're demanding the release of political prisoners, then we have to talk about how journalists like Masrat Zahra are being picked up in Kashmir as well. Whether Kashmir should be free or not is a question that Kashmiris should be allowed to give their opinion on."

BT Venkatesh (58), who is fighting the case of arrested student Amulya Leona, emphasised that a big chunk of the awareness among students has come through liber- al education post the economic liberalisation in the country. "There is a discontent among students who believe in a democratic process. They believe in liberty which has been taken away," he says.

SPACE WATCH

SPOT THE CHARIOTEER

Auriga is the Latin name of a large constellation situated north of the celestial equator. As such, it is more easily visible from the northern hemisphere. This constellation is also known as 'The Charioteer'. Auriga's brightest star is called Capella. It's a golden star, somewhat similar to our sun. Capella is located at one corner of the constellation Auriga. Capella marks the Charioteer's left shoulder. If you're unsure whether you've identified Capella, you can always look nearby for a small triangle of stars. Capella is sometimes called the Goat Star, and this little triangle is known as The Kids. Menkalinan, the second-brightest star in Auriga, marks the Charioteer's right shoulder. Also, notice the star Elnath at the southern tip of Auriga. This star used to belong both to Auriga, where it was known as the heel of the Charioteer, and to the constellation Taurus, where it represented the tip of the Bull's northern horn.

FIT BIT

VATAYANASANA (HORSE POSE)

This is an intermediate yoga pose that requires a great deal of flexibility and is part of the series of Ashtanga yoga. In Sanskrit, 'Vataya' means 'horse' and 'asana' means 'pose'. This pose stimulates svadisthana chakra, the centre of passion and pleasure that governs creativity and sexuality.

STEPS

- While standing on the mat, take a deep breath.
- The spine should align with neck and lower limbs must be parallel to each other. Begin the posture by folding one leg, say the left one, from the knees and using the palm to bring it upwards – foot should reach for the groin where it stays for the rest of the stance.
- Now, bend the right leg down until the right thigh is parallel to the ground and feel the left knee touching the ground as well, making balance easier.
- Keeping your body straight, lift your arms up and intertwine them forming the shape of a twisted ribbon. Elbows should end near chest level, arms above.
- Tilt your head back a little for support and lock in the position for 60 seconds. You will get there with practise. Slowly untangle to the base position.
- Repeat the pose on the opposite side too.
- This is one complete set. Can repeat it twice a day.

BENEFITS

- It is a bone-strengthening exercise. Experts suggest that minor deformities in the hip or lower limbs can be cured and get more flexibility for bones in the lower body.
- Muscles can tangle themselves that would hold back the flexibility. This pose can untangle the tension knots. You will have pain initially and it'll ease with proper practice.
- Ensures proper blood circulation in the body. The twists and stretches are simply a facilitator.
- Helps reducing stiffness and pain if you suffer from arthritis.
- Helpful in cases of inguinal and femoral hernia.
- Strengthens legs and knees, and improves balance, core awareness and focus.

LIMITATIONS

- Beginners must do this only under expert guidance.
- Avoid this if you have knee problems.
- Prepare for great flexibility and sweating out.

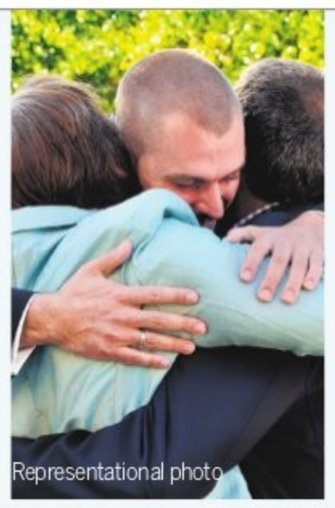
A WARPED SENSE OF SURVIVAL

Good morning, Bangalore!

I consider myself a fairly erudite person with a certain mastery over my vocabulary and on occasion, can conjure up a clever phrase. But of late I am trying desperately to paraphrase or word a sentence which conveys a deep sense of anguish. I find myself allowing a sense of hopelessness and despondency to overtake what used to be a spirit of joie-de-vivre. Inherently, the generation that gave birth to the millenniums is an optimistic bunch. So much has changed, altered and disappeared in our lifetimes that we are forced to have a 'Zen' type of attitude which says, 'this too shall pass'! We have run out of choices and other than giddy-headed optimism, we are truly sunk!

So going forward and dealing with this situation on our hands, we the optimistic generation are trying very hard to cope with this new situation. Most of us admit that we were mute spectators to the rampant destruction of our planet, Mother Nature, humane ideals and basic human decency. We also acknowledge that we chose not to engage with the unrest raging around us by pretending to be oblivious; merrily smelling the flowers and justifying our inaction by saying we did our bit by burning our brasseries and demanding gender equality (which was huge!). Yes! We were silent. The erudite, savvy and intelligent generation of change-makers grew silent and complacent, trying desperately to keep up with the millenniums and the Gen Zs just to feel relevant. In doing so, we forgot our strengths which came squarely from facing the truth head-on, the ability to empathise and sympathise without feeling it was a 'weak' emotion, and the gumption to move mountains on the power of conviction.

Why do I rue my generation's lack of courage now? Because a lot of us introspected during these unusual times, tried very hard to understand what suddenly changed our complacent way of life and how it impacted our future. Many of us were planning the 'sunset boulevard' route of endless holidays, while many of us became first-time entrepreneurs and tried avenues we never had the courage to venture into before. Many of us kicked off our well-worn sandals to 'chill madi', play cards and look after our grandkids... in that order! Exciting plans till nature decided to kick us in the solar plexus. Once again we had to don the sensible adult/parent mantle because Gen Z and their millenniums' pals we completely caught off guard! We had to play the cajoling adults, shouldering responsibilities (roti kapda makan and the internet) while the new generation was caught with their pants down, quavering in their pure silk Derek Rose Bailey boxers and clutching onto their ridiculously priced Hermes bags.



Representational photo

I sincerely thought by connecting with what's real in our lives, we would think with compassion and clarity and perhaps live in oneness with nature. I, for one, definitely thought that I would be unafraid to speak up on how our silence and complacency brought our world to the brink! The feedback I got was heartening and positive. I wrote to all my nieces and nephews across the globe to look after each other, the environment, Mother Nature and other life forms and the repercussions of wet markets on the world. Then... one hears about the Elephant and her unborn calf and how she chose to die in the water... one with nature. I read and heard numerous frivolous discussions on vegetarianism versus non-vegetarianism, atheists versus religion, and environmentalists versus capitalists. Human beings can always justify their hatred, their insatiable greed and their apathy with an unconcerned shrug. One will never know if the starving farmers set a trap to lure wild boar that devoured their fields, or whether it is the total government apathy to the recurring plight of the hapless farmers.

What I know is, tomorrow this aberration will be forgotten and there will be a new one!

Recognising that a literature festival with a large footfall may not be a possibility this year, the Bangalore Literature Festival will see online segments, the first of which starts today

'Book'ing a slot

Vidya Iyengar

A weekend with books and authors, conversing and debating, queuing up for signings... all that is synonymous with the Bangalore Literature Festival (BLF) may be different this year owing to the pandemic. Recognising that a literature festival with a footfall in thousands may not be a possibility, BLF will now see smaller online segments, titled WorldLit, starting on June 6 with an interaction between writers Anthony Horowitz and Paro Anand. WorldLit is the BLF's digital literary platform bringing livestream sessions, video interviews and podcasts with leading international and Indian authors. This is being done in collaboration with the Bangalore International Centre (BIC).

"With the outbreak of the pandemic we realised it was time to re-think the conventional model. No more would it be possible for thousands to partake in the literature festival. Secondly, we figured that authors might not be comfortable with travelling anytime soon. With these emerged the idea to organise sessions online, especially with international authors. There will also be Indian authors participating," says V Ravichandar, core team member of BLF and honorary director of BIC.

The month of June will also see an interaction between Chetan Bhagat and Shrabonti Bagchi (scheduled for June 16 as a podcast), and a conversation between cricketer Paddy Upton and commentator Harsha Bogle on June 27. Writers Pico Iyer and Samanth Subramanian are scheduled for an interaction, probably sometime in July.

At the same time, Ravichandar understands that with events and seminars going online during the lockdown, there's a webinar fatigue that has set in. "But we've noticed that while there might be a certain number viewing a live event, there's also a large number viewing the recorded versions at their convenience," he says, adding that in addition to the virtual conversations they hope to include a physical festival with a small gathering that might be held at the end of the year if circumstances permit.

No sweet talk

Dr Sashwanthi Mohan

Diabetes Mellitus currently affects more than 62 million Indians, which is roughly 7.2 per cent of the adult population. One of the most common questions we ask a patient in any outpatient department is if they have diabetes. This is because it can affect various parts of the body, including the eyes. The duration of diabetes and the level of control of blood sugars play an important role in determining the extent of damage it can have on the eye. Often, patients are surprised to hear that this is the reason for their eye ailments. This is due to lack of awareness that diabetes can even lead to vision loss.

What are the problems caused by diabetes in the eye?

It can be something as simple as frequent change in refractive error or recurrent painful swelling in the eyelids (stye), to serious problems affecting vision such as cataract, glaucoma and diabetic retinopathy. Diabetic retinopathy is a leading cause of irreversible blindness. If not detected early, it can lead to loss of vision. In the initial stages, it goes unnoticed as it may not cause significant visual problems but as the disease progresses, it can become sight threatening. This is why it is important for all diabetics to have yearly retinal check-ups for early detection of this condition.

If you are diabetic, it is primarily important to keep your blood sugars under control with necessary medication and diet. Frequent measurement of blood sugars as well as Hba1C level is advised. Associated conditions such as hypertension and high cholesterol should be kept under control as these can aggravate the diabetic effects on the eye or by themselves affect the eye. Smoking should be avoided, and exercise is encouraged.

Management

Treatment of diabetic retinopathy varies depending on the condition. Milder stages of the disease only require stricter control of blood sugar levels. Severe stages will need laser, injections or even surgery. The management and follow-up examinations vary from person to person. Annual eye and retina evaluation should be done for every person diagnosed with diabetes. Patients should consult an ophthalmologist irrespective of their symptoms. Early detection and management of diabetic eye disease or retinopathy can help prevent irreversible loss of vision.

PAST FORWARD

Bengaluru-based two-piece instrumental outfit Treble Puns debut E – Sounds Like Treble – revolves around instances many Indians might relate to. Drummer Sohini Bhattacharya cites how it reflects daily events from one's childhood years, and says, "It's about things that Indian kids hear from parents, teachers and society. It forms the basis of who we are and the biases we hold as people. And in turn we repeat the cycle." The four-track album also aims to create an audio-visual experience through a series of animations.

With Bhattacharya on drums and Abhimanyu Roy on guitars, keyboard and programming, the music has soulful rhythms and a soothing tone. The EP, which released on March 28, is an amalgamation of progressive rock, Indian classical and electronica with the addition of live looping, forming a complete sound. "We wanted an immersive sound experience that comes at a listener from many angles. For example, if you focus on one aspect of the sound, we wanted other elements to creep up on you," says Bhattacharya, adding that when it came to the electronic aspects – loopers, programming and synthesisers were utilised. "In most of our songs, we start with the bassline. To us that's what sets the tone and builds the song. After that, it's about having fun with the sound and putting in what we enjoy listening to ourselves – an atmospheric sound with a relatable feel to it," she said.

Album art by Samiksha Nair and Zenobia Jhaveri

The duo, who formed the musical venture in 2018, say that the songs are based on defining relationships, especially the friction that makes these relations real. While tracks like No Teacher's Pet speak of the obsession with formal education and its commoditisation as a means to wealth, Father of the Notion deals with a father trying to pass the buck of responsibility to his ward. "It states that you need to start earning and providing to be loved. Momologue, which is the longest piece, looks at the commonly used parenting technique of shaming one's child into righteousness," Bhattacharya explains.

Treble Pun's sound is a homage to the artistes they draw inspiration from. "We tend to think like a prog rock band, breaking down rhythms into unequal patterns – similar to bands Tool and Porcupine Tree. The melodies are Indian, drawn from ragas. We are inspired by great Indian guitar players like Pandit Vishwa Mohan Bhatt, Baiju Dharamarajan, Sushmit Sen and Rex Vijayan," says Bhattacharya.

GRIEVING FOR THE GENTLE GIANT

"I come from Coorg and I have seen bison, wild boar, etc coming to our estate. There is always a way of doing things. Even if it was meant for some other animal, it was an inhuman method of doing things
—Shubra Aiyappa, actor

The story of the 15-year-old pregnant elephant in Kerala who died after eating a pineapple stuffed with fire crackers has left a large number of people in distress. The who's who of the city are no exception. Many Bengaluru's celebrities have taken to the social media to express their grief and disappointment.

Actor Samyuktha Hornard, who has always raised her voice against animal cruelty, didn't waste a moment this time either, and pointed out the need for having stricter laws for protection of wild animals. "According to Section 428 of IPC, which was formulated in 1960, killing of wild animal invites a fine of only ₹50 , which is ridiculous and need to be changed. Feeding and domesticating wild animals is illegal and it can't be taken lightly," Hornard tells CE. "When you think you have control over another life and incidents like animal sacrifice happen in the name of beliefs, it's nothing but people showing their superiority," she adds.

Reports have emerged that the cracker-stuffed pineapple was meant for wild boars and the elephant consumed it by accident, but that too does not justify the act, says Anup Kattukaran, an underwater filmmaker and photographer. "What if a human child had picked up the fruit? Sure we can argue about the loss of crops that farmers go through but we need to understand that the conflict between human and wild animals will be an issue for as long as we encroach into their space," says Kattukaran, who posted a picture of the elephant clicked by him as a tribute after the incident came to light when a forest officer, Mohan Krishnan, wrote a Facebook post about how the elephant rushed to the nearby Velliyar river after eating the fruit and died there even as forest officials rushed to rescue it.

Agrees actor Shubra Aiyappa, who mentions that she is still shocked with the news. "I come from Coorg and I have seen bison, wild boar, etc coming to our estate. There is always a way of doing things. Even if it was meant for some other animal, it was an inhuman method of doing things," say Aiyappa, who posted a write-up on Instagram on the day the incident was reported. She wrote, "My heart is bleeding as I write this . We are capable of conducting such an act of atrocity ? What kind of sadistic pleasure would one get watching a pregnant, innocent harmless creature undergo such pain . Haven't the current times taught these barbaric monsters any lessons of empathy and love ?? Shame on us to have this kind of power and then misuse it. (SIC)"

Talking about the discussions over the location of the death, Kattukaran adds, "That's just not done. Starting a hate campaign between communities is just stupid."

TS Nagabharana plans to adapt Vidya Sundari, Bengaluru Nagarathnamma for silver screen

The senior director now plans to capture the life and times of the Carnatic singer, cultural activist, and courtesan on to the silver screen

Theatre and film director, and National award winner, TS Nagabharana, is getting ready to bring to life the story of Indian Carnatic singer, cultural activist, and courtesan, Bengaluru Nagarathnamma on screen. Having already directed a play on the legendary artist, Nagabharana is currently working on the script of the film that has been titled, Vidya Sundari Bengaluru Nagarathnamma.

"I first read about Bengaluru Nagarathnamma in 2009 through the book The Devadas and the Saint written by V Sriram in 2007. Six years ago, I started working on that subject. Having read about her life, I found it a fantastic material to make it as a film. But I didn't have a producer, and to convince a producer for such a project is hard. So I decided to start with a play, which was staged last year. The play has become very popular, and in a year, we have staged for about 10 times. The play impressed a few friends, who were keen that I direct a film on Bangalore Nagarathnamma, which lead me to start the project," says the director.

Nagabharana plans to make Bengaluru Nagarathnamma in Kannada and plans to release it in Telugu and Tamil as well. "This film will be brought out in three languages," says the director, who is now in the 13th version of the script, and is in the process of fine-tuning it.

"Bengaluru Nagarathnamma, born in 1878 in Nanjangud died in 1952 in Thiruvaiyaru. In her lifetime, she conquered Carnatic music in Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh, and Tamil Nadu. I read that she was among the first woman to pay income tax to Madras Residency at that time. She was one of the best harikatha pioneers in South India. My subject will highlight her works and her achievements," says Nagabharana, who is contemplating whether to do it as a two-part series.

A still from the play

Nagabharana says the casting will be done much later. "For me, the subject is my hero and I don't prefer to make a hero-oriented subject. I had the script of Aakasmika for 15 years before I directed it for Dr. Rajkumar. I wait for the perfect actor to suit the character," says Nagabharana, who, after completing the script, wants to concentrate on the music for the film.

"I am yet to come across a music director who can contribute to this subject. L Vaidyanathan would have been the best choice, and I miss him. I have a few options in my mind, and I will finalise a music director, who can commit to the project. I might start the casting process by the end of December and the film will go on floors with Vidya Sundari, Bengaluru Nagarathnamma in 2021," says Nagabharana. Meanwhile, the play can be watched online on June 7, 7.30 pm on the Benaka Theatre Group's webpage.

CHINTU KA BIRTHDAY

Baghdad, 2004. It's a year since American troops have occupied Iraq. There is a car blast. The Madan Tiwari household is taken over by two American soldiers in search of insurgents. Madan Tiwari's (a brilliant Vinay Pathak) family is geared up to celebrate the sixth birthday of Chintu (a bright-eyed Vedant Chibber), its youngest member. There is shelling all around. The soldiers are forced to stay inside the house because the insurgents are retaliating. Then... there is a loud knock. A very young, yet confident voice calls out for Chintu. A local Iraqi kid and his sister are at the doorstep. "We come for Chintu birthday party. Let me in. I go out I killed, here... I eat cake," says young Waheed, who has braved dust, grime, blood, and bombs to come to his best friend's birthday party. The loss of innocence is understandable in a place of perennial strife like Iraq, but what about the normalisation of violence in the minds of these impressionable kids?

Cast: Vinay Pathak, Tilottama Shome, Bisha Chaturvedi, Vedant Chibber
Director: Devanshu and Satyanshu Singh
Streaming on: Zee 5
RATING 3.5/5

Over the course of just under 90 minutes, Chintu ka Birthday puts a spin on the kind of chamber dramas we've seen in Indian cinema in recent times. While like most of those, this film too is a thriller, Chintu ka Birthday also works as a family drama. A film that, for instance, a Basu Chatterjee (RIP, you wonderful filmmaker) would have made now. A film where every tear is punctuated by a smile. A film where every kick in the gut is followed by an understanding embrace.

Although the central conceit of looking at war and violence through the eyes of a child might remind you of Academy Award-winner Jojo Rabbit, Chintu ka Birthday has a strong sense of uniqueness. Everyone in the film is battling inner demons. While one soldier is already disillusioned with the search for the 'weapons of mass destruction', the other, who is newly deployed, is livid over the insurgents beheading his brothers in the American army. Madan and family have been trying to trust the system and return to India, but are met with multiple hurdles. Chintu's fifth birthday was spoiled when "America waale uncle" ordered his forces to occupy Iraq. The elder sibling Lakshmi (played by a gifted Bisha Chaturvedi) is the archetype of an Indian girl who is forced to grow up too fast for her age. She is so stoic that when she breaks down, even her parents are surprised. Words like, "If you break down, what will happen to others?" that are usually reserved for someone older are used to pacify her.

In between all this, the narration allows us to draw parallels to people wanting to go home. We also find people not knowing what home is anymore. Is the idea of home just an extension of the construct of wanting peace and happiness? Are peace and happiness the ultimate luxuries? Or is the desire for them just imaginary fuel to keep the fire of hope raging inside us?

Written and directed by Devanshu and Satyanshu Singh, Chintu ka Birthday makes us think of these questions, but it doesn't preach. References to religious indoctrination and Saddam's regime are made in passing. The sympathy is earned and not forced out of us. Major credit for this goes to the performances of the stellar cast lead by Vinay Pathak and Tilottama Shome. As Madan and Sudha, parents of Chintu, they play outsiders in a country that is invaded by outsiders. Although Tilottama doesn't have many dialogues, her silences speak loud. Sudha believes Madan will get them through any ordeal. They have to be strong together to ensure that come what may, Chintu gets to celebrate his birthday. This becomes paramount to the family despite facing an uncertain future soon thereafter.

Through well-crafted dialogues between Madan and the two American soldiers, the writers establish how the story of the real victims tend to get buried under the debris of the stories of others. "They say Saddam Hussein killed Shias, including women and children. Some say he was a great man. Who knows the truth? My personal problem is very small when compared to what the country is going through," says Madan, who is portrayed as the epitome of goodness and hope. This behaviour irks his mother-in-law, played by the inimitable Seema Pahwa. She berates him and asks, "Do you think you can smile and melt all their hearts?"

Smiling at their home being shattered isn't enough when the alternative is outing a young kid who made an innocent mistake. But just like Madan, somewhere deep within us, we do hope that it will be enough. We do hope that the goodness in our hearts will melt theirs. We do hope that there will be light even in the darkest of places. We do hope that children can dream of a safer future. We do hope.

RAKSHIT SHETTY TO PLAY DHARMA IN 777 CHARLIE

The video, which will be out on the actor's birthday, gives a glimpse of the character's life in the comedy-drama adventure directed by Kiranraj, who has also come up with a concept-based poster

Dharma is an introvert, rough and tough guy, who doesn't indulge in talks with the neighbours. He often invites complaints, and is known as Hitler among children. Director Kiranraj gives a peek into Rakshit Shetty's characterisation in 777 Charlie, on the occasion of the actor's birthday, which he celebrates on Saturday. The character will be unveiled in a special video, that will also mention the rest of the characters in the film, including Raj B Shetty and Sangeetha Sringeri. This apart, the makers have come up with a concept-based poster featuring Rakshit and Charlie, which denotes who is the bigger of the two. According to the director, it explains how ultimately, Dharma's realisation about Charlie is represented through this poster. Ask Kiranraj about Rakshit as Dharma, and he says, "As everyone knows, the character was initially supposed to be played by another artiste. But I had my limitations. Fortunately, when Rakshit came on board, I could step out of the boundary in terms of the story as well as the budget. This also helped me revise the character and tune the script exactly the way I had visualised and tailor-make it for Rakshit. When a known artiste comes on board, the character becomes stronger, and the team was fortunate to have Rakshit playing the lead. Most importantly, this will be a never-seen-before character to be portrayed by Rakshit. While every film will usually see the actor in conversation, this film will have him convey the thoughts through visual appeal, and mostly through expressions." Also seen in the video will be Charlie, and how she is an important part in Dharma's life. The combination of these two will be a delight to watch, adds Kiranraj. The film is presented by Pushkar Films and jointly produced by Rakshit Shetty and GS Gupta under the banner of Paramvah Studios. The comedy-drama adventure has music composed by Nobin Paul, and cinematography by Aravind Kashyap.

A MINOR THRILLER ON THE CURSES OF CASH

• Shilajit Mitra

CHOKED

Cast: Saiyami Kher, Roshan Mathew, Amruta Subhash
Director: Anurag Kashyap
Streaming on: Netflix
RATING 2.5/5

Like the recent cyclone that threatened to sweep Mumbai, Anurag Kashyap's Choked has a stormy start but quickly careens off its course. Set in the city of dreams and woven around the 2016 demonetisation, this might be the director's feeblest work yet, a minor thriller with a few bright spots but nothing uniquely seductive or fresh. As Sarita (Saiyami Kher), the film's protagonist, disastrously learns, you can't just swap out old notes for new.

In an early scene, we see Sarita in bed, wide-awake. Sushant (Roshan Mathew), her out-of-work, musician husband, is asleep beside her, along with their young boy. They live in an ordinary Maharashtrian apartment, its blue walls damp and peeling. It's not the wisest location choice for a thriller — something cinematographer Sylvester Fonseca accentuates in the opening shot, with the camera tilting up the face of the building to reveal a clouded sky.

But as Sarita squints into the darkness, her mind drifts off to a giant disco orb flashing red and green. We learn that she was once an aspiring singer, but gave it all up after an unfortunate choke-up during a talent show. The moment still haunts her, though she shrugs it off by burying herself in her banking job and supporting her husband's dream.

One night, bundles of cash start magically bubbling up under her kitchen sink. At least Sarita thinks it's magical — initially using the money to pay off a loan shark on Sushant's tail. But then demonetisation strikes, prying neighbours try to get in on the game, and Sarita gets caught in a rough spot.

And so does the film. In trying to weave the myriad aftershocks of the 2016 move — beginning with the long queues at Sarita's bank, the spells of cash shortage — Nihit Bhave's script loses its baseline of cohesion. Some scenes stick out for their bland commentary, instead of the bolder, cheekier commentary of Mukkabaaz or Gangs of Wasseypur. This is Anurag operating at his slackest, baldly stating his scorn instead of finding imaginative workarounds.

All along, the filmmaking remains top-notch. Simple household sounds — clanks, gurgles, clicks — are used to create thickets of suspense. An entire sequence is built around Sarita retrieving cash from strategic points in the house. There's money under the puja shelf, in a tin jar, even stuffed into an empty torch. The camera choreography gets repetitive, compounded by the drum solos spread throughout the score.

In Ugly (2013), another film with a kid and a broken relationship, the mood was cynically caustic. Choked offers a more redemptive arc to its characters. Sarita is disappointed in Sushant, yet wants him out of trouble. Though she's always on his case, their arguments don't spill too far. In one scene, he confronts her for hiding things from him. She insists they'll fight later. When he presses for answers, she tells him to fetch her sindoor. "Who keeps sindoor in the bathroom?" he ends up asking, the kind of absurd swerve that quickly eases the mood.

Saiyami acquits herself well in a multi-layered role. Her look of faint exasperation vividly reflects the day-to-day grind of female breadwinners in the city, while their husbands play carrom and Candy Crush. Roshan, making his Bollywood debut, is effective in his part, though not always in sync with the Mumbai milieu. There's an army of Anurag Kashyap faces: Amruta Subhash, Rajshri Deshpande, Aditya Kumar. Amruta, in particular, steals the show.

Choked assesses how grand policy decisions impact ordinary lives. It's a pertinent question, but the film fails to connect the dots. It's too distracted and self-absorbed to offer a bigger picture. The tagline might be 'Paisa Bolta Hai', but this film has little else to say.
